Soustelle's Star Over France

Paris: The image I had of Jacques Soustelle was that of a grimly determined soldier seen on the television screen and in smudged news pictures during the desperate days when he was attempting to bring off an army rebellion against Gen. de Gaulle in Algeria.

Consequently, when I met with him at his office on the Champs Elysees it was somewhat disconcerting to talk philosophically of politics and power with a quietly dressed, heavily built man whose glasses and manner made him appear very much the professor.

When De Gaulle dismissed his old friend and leader from the army, Soustelle opened a small office on the second floor of a building not far from the Arch of Triumph. Two secretaries, one a brisk, competent, rather pretty young woman, and another older, more severe, and one tall, somewhat grim looking man of soldierly bearing, made up his staff. But sitting around were watchful young men, obviously bodyguards. An attempt was made some months ago to assassinate Soustelle.

There is a small brass plate on the office door with letters CIPAS standing for "Committee for Information on Problems of Algeria and Sahara."

Logical Talk

Soustelle talks logically, if not with reality. He unquestionably believes passionately that France must retain Algeria. Who holds it, he says, keeps Africa about the Mediterranean and also Southern France. Algerian rebels, he insists, are defeated and now try to win a political battle, having lost the military one. This reflects the bitterness of his followers, in and out of the army, who believe France's politicians have done most of the damage.

"Only France's army," he said, "can impose a necessary sort of social revolution in Algeria." He astonished me somewhat by saying he would like to do in Algeria something similar to what Israel has done in the middle of an Arab and Moslem area. It can be done if the army is permitted. This is his plan. He will prevent present efforts for negotiations with rebels if he can.

He points to De Gaulle's experience with Guinea as an example of error: This small country was told by the general to quit the French community if it wished. Its plight was that of all new African nations. It did not have administrators or technicians. Czechs, East Germans and Poles were sent in by Russia, who offered help.

Should France quit Algeria within months, argues Soustelle, the same people would infiltrate for Russia, and Africa would be lost as much of Asia already is gone. He cynically noted that Algerian rebels were feted in Peking, North Vietnam and North Korea.

Stories

Soustelle is not any longer a figure out of Beau Geste. But all sorts of grandiose stories circulate about him. One is that a conspiracy goes on by his supporters who remain in the army and that within six months they will be able to control it. Still another has it that the Soustelle group dreams of making a great group d'etat and regaining both Morocco and Tunis.

Certainly the army is in French politics to stay for some time. When I suggested to Soustelle that his plan would make the army a political instrument, he shrugged, and said, "This is a political war." He professes to have great respect for De Gaulle, but his followers are bitter and it is impossible not to believe Soustelle also is vindictive. His supporters see him one day as head of France. They think there will be one political figure to follow De Gaulle, that he will fail, and Soustelle's star then will rise.

Meanwhile, French opinion is with Le Grand Charles. French students oppose the Soustelle program. Continental metropolitan France is interested in peace.

Coming down from Soustelle's office into the bright sun, to the flowing life of the Champs Elysees and the crowded sidewalk cafes, it was difficult to believe in conspiracy.

Gov. Davis Rolls Ahead In Dakota

Big Cities Give GOP Big Margin

By TIM HOGAN

BISMARCK, N. D. (UPI)—Republican Gov. John Davis built up a solid lead in North Dakota's weather-vane special senatorial election Tuesday night, but Democratic Rep. Quentin Burdick still looked for victory on a surge of wheat belt protest votes.

With 711 of 2,310 precincts counted, two-term Gov. Davis had 49,967 vote to 40,176 for Burdick, the first Democratic congressman ever elected from North Dakota.

A national political spotlight and mounting unrest against the policies of secretary of agriculture Benson swelled the vote to an expected 215,000, well over the primary vote record of 209,000. Voters were still lined up at the polls when balloting stopped at 7 p.m.

Davis jumped to an early lead as expected on the basis of returns from the larger cities, traditionally the citadels of the solid Republicanism which has ruled North Dakota for 77 years.

R. A. Brown, GOP campaign director, said at midnight that "with the present trend going in Davis' favor, Burdick ought to be ready to concede."

But Scott Anderson, executive director of the state Democratic Party, said "Davis will have to make a much better showing than he has at this stage of the race, because we figure to gain on late returns."

Republicans hoped they saw a decisive trend in the returns from Cass County, which includes Burdick's home town of Fargo, the state's biggest city.

Davis was running approximately 2 to 1 ahead of Burdick in the county with 9,067 votes to 5,494, with 62 of 130 precincts counted. By contrast, the Cass County Davis margin over Burdick in 1958 was only 4-to-3 when the Republican was running for governor and the Democrat for Congress.

At Burdick headquarters, Democrats hoped they saw a turning of the tide in first returns from western counties which have frequently decided North Dakota elections in the past.

The first western returns looked good to the Democrats and Anderson said, "We have also noted gains for Burdick in scattered urban precincts." Democrats were quick to point out that the sparsely-settled western country has always been good campaign ground for Burdick and his father, Maverick Republican congressman Usher Burdick.

Thousands of Tanks Are Faulty, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators Tuesday made public a hotly disputed report charging that serious defects reduced the usefulness of thousands of Army tanks.

The blistering 192-page report—the result of a four-year investigation—was drafted by the General Accounting Office.

The GAO charged, among other things, that the Army has purchased nearly 19,000 combat and tactical vehicles valued at about $1,600,000,000 that have deficiencies "which seriously impair their operation and maintenance."

Challenging this, the Army termed the report as unfair and said it is studied with inaccuracy.

State's First Permit to Test For Oil to Be Issued Today

Georgia will issue its first permit Wednesday for off-shore oil exploration.

A spokesman for Gov. Vandiver's office said Tuesday that the permit would be issued to Off-Shore Geophysical Prospecting Exploration Co. of Houston, Tex.

The company, which conducts tidal area explorations for major oil firms, is representing the Pure Oil Co. The Texas group is the same firm which submitted—and later withdrew—an application for exploration rights in April.

An aide to the governor said the permit would be issued "immediately." He said an official of the exploration group is en route

West Considering Arms Issue for U.N.

By A. M. ROSENTHAL

(Copyright 1960 by the New York Times Co.)

GENEVA—The Western powers are giving top priority consideration to a plan to put the disarmament case and the issue of the Communist walkout before the members of the United Nations as soon as possible.

Mercury to Push 90s Under Cloudy Skies

Warmer weather will push the mercury up around the 90 mark in the Atlanta-north Georgia area the next two days, the weatherman says.

Wednesday's forecast calls for extremes of 68 and 88. Extremes of 68 and 90 are expected Thursday. Partly cloudy skies also are predicted both days.

Atlanta's temperature extremes Tuesday were 70 and 85.

The plan, strongly backed by United States diplomats, is to move swiftly to transfer the entire disarmament discussion to the 82-member United Nations Disarmament Commission in New York.

Most Western diplomats here believe that Monday's Communist walkout from the East-West talks before the West had a chance to present its new plan gave the West an important political advantage that should be seized by quick action before the U.N. body. The Soviet Union already has announced that it would take up the disarmament case before the General Assembly in the fall.

The Western delegations—France, Britain, the U.S., Canada and Italy—went over strategy plans carefully here Tuesday and were in frequent touch with their capitals. But the final decision will be made by the Western foreign offices, and it was reported here that urgent talks were now going on in Washington.

WEST ENDS TALKS

Before they began their caucuses, the Western powers met for the formal end of the Geneva talks. Communist representatives—some of them as stunned by Moscow's orders for the sudden

He Stabs, Kills Wife, 3 Children

Cousin Also Dies In Love Triangle

CHICAGO (UPI)—Five persons, including a woman and her three children, were stabbed to death Tuesday night, and police said the woman's husband admitted killing the five because of love rivalry.

The mother, Maria Gomez Hernandez, 25, and the admitted killer's cousin, Luyando Perez, 26, were found dead on the third and first floors of an apartment building on the North Side.

Less than four miles away Mrs. Hernandez' three children were found dead in bed. Clad in street clothes, each had been stabbed several times.

ADULTS SLAYINGS

Police shortly later captured Raymond Hernandez, 26, a grocery packer. Lt. Philip Iden said Hernandez admitted stabbing the five because Perez and his wife had been dating.

The victims were stabbed with an 11-inch French chef's knife. Perez and Mrs. Hernandez were found in Mrs. Hernandez' apartment building. A trail of blood led from the third floor, where the woman's body was found in her apartment, to the first floor, where Perez was lying.

Police said Hernandez, who was separated from his wife, apparently picked up his children at his wife's apartment Tuesday night and took them to his own apartment Tuesday night and took them to his own apartment and then stabbed them.

SEPARATED 3 WEEKS

Hernandez was captured by a police burglary detail in the near North Side from a description broadcast over the radio.

Iden said Hernandez, who said he speaks little English, admitted killing the five and said he had brought Perez from Puerto Rico about five years ago, fed and housed him, only to be robbed of his wife.

Hernandez said he had been separated from his wife only two or three weeks. The children were Rosita Gomez Hernandez, 2, Emma Gomez Hernandez, 6, and Icky Hernandez, 4½.

Housing Billion Blocked by Panel; Overtime Looms

Aged Care Falters In Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A billion-dollar housing bill struck a major roadblock Tuesday in the rush for congressional adjournment, and it appeared the same fate might befall legislation to provide subsidized medical care for the aged.

These and other developments added to the growing possibility that Congress, which had hoped to quit for the year next week, might postpone its adjournment until after the presidential conventions are over.

The goal has been to wind up before the conventions get under way. The Democrats convene in Los Angeles July 11; the Republicans in Chicago July 25.

Senate Democratic leader Johnson, who had been optimistic that Congress could quit before the conventions, said Tuesday it might not. He said there is a possibility the lawmakers might have to return in August to wind up their work.

One potential roadblock to adjournment was removed when House-Senate negotiators approved a compromise $40 billion military spending bill carrying some $650 million more than President Eisenhower originally requested.

The measure included increased funds for a conventionally-powered aircraft carrier, missiles, spy-in-the-air satellites, anti-submarine defenses and the controversial Bomarc anti-aircraft missile.

Johnson, however, was not optimistic about adjournment prospects.

He said that of 25 senators he

Guard and Caddie Drown in Lake

A guard and caddie at the Capital City Country Club were drowned Tuesday when a boat capsized on the club lake in Brookhaven. Two other occupants of the boat escaped.

Dead were Perry O. Sowell, 66, of 2841 Briarlake Rd., day guard at the club, and Joseph D. Ward, 16, Negro, of a Chestnut Drive, NW, address, a caddie.

Fred Dickson, chief of Fisheries for the State Game and Fish Department, was a witness to the tragedy.

Dickson said he had gone out to the lake to make an analysis of fishing conditions. Officers said Dickson, Sowell and Otis Lindsey, 53, a club employee, had crossed the lake with equipment and that Sowell returned to pick up three caddies.

Dets. D. H. Clotfelter and W. C. Ingram said that while returning across the lake, two men stood up at the front of the boat and then it shipped water. As some jumped out, the boat capsized, witnesses said.

"I shouted for them to hang onto the boat, and another boat would come for them," Dickson said. Larry Sperman, 16, Negro, of 1236 Kerry Dr., who was unable to swim, held onto the overturned boat until help arrived.

Thomas Walker, 16, Negro, of 560 Spencer St., SW, and Ward set out to swim to shore 100 yards away. Walker reached safety.

A rescue boat was put into the lake immediately, officers said.

12 Whites Called to Stand In Hotly Waged Terrell Case

ALBANY—The Justice department introduced a dozen white witnesses Tuesday in an attempt to show that the Terrell County registrars were easier in registering them to vote than they were in registering Negroes.

One of the witnesses, Eugene G. Moncus, a railroad section foreman for 35 years, testified that his wife took the written part of the literacy test for him in Dawson last January.

All but one of the white persons who testified in the second day of the trial before U.S. District Judge W. A. Boodle said they simply read and wrote a section of the Georgia Constitution and were registered the first time they applied.

The exception was G. L. Nale, a Terrell County farmer who said he failed the test in 1958 and passed it the following year.

Chief defense attorney Charles Bloch said that whether some unqualified whites were registered was beside the point. He said the registrars may have made a mistake if they gave the whites easier tests but even in that event it would not be a Justice department matter.

"It would not prove that the voting rights of Negroes had been abridged," the Macon attorney said.

One Negro witness, D. L. Gibson, formerly of Dawson, who holds a master of science degree from New York University and is a Zebulon school teacher, indicated some indirect threats were made after this suit was filed in September, 1958.

Asked why he did not go to a meeting with U.S. attorneys in Macon during that period, Gibson said he was afraid because of "things that were going on in Dawson."

"It seemed odd that every time I went visiting," Gibson said, "the

Last 3 Leave Stricken Ship

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI)—A youthful tanker captain and two shipmates trying to ride their flooded ship into harbor were transferred to a tow vessel Tuesday night and planned to beach their own stricken vessel on the South Carolina coast.

A Coast Guard cutter took Capt. Eldridge Burnthorn, 33, his mate and a crewman from the tiling decks of the Sinclair Oil tanker S.S. George MacDonald and transferred them to the S.S. J. E. Dyer, another Sinclair tanker trying to tow its sister ship to port.

The cutter Papaw reported the situation eased by transfer of the three stubborn sailors and said the MacDonald appeared to be holding on in moderate seas although "adverse weather can alter the situation."

The Papaw reported in a radio message that Burnthorn's "tentative plan" is to try to beach the MacDonald in shoal waters between Charleston and Cape Romain and repair and refloat it there.

The Dyer was making only two knots while towing the MacDonald which was stricken by a rupture in its cooling system Monday night.

The Dyer and the MacDonald were about 65 miles out of Charleston when the men were transferred. The sea was mild and winds were light.

Burnthorn, whose 15 years at sea make up for his relative youth, sent 40 crewmen to safety in lifeboats Monday night and early Tuesday and they were picked up immediately by rescue ships.

The captain at first reported the MacDonald—loaded with 130,000 barrels of heavy industrial fuel oil—was sinking. But the bulkheads held even though the decks were awash.

Another tanker, the Esso Scranton, took 29 crewmen to Jacksonville, Fla., and a Navy destroyer on a reserve training cruise, the U.S.S. Robinson, took 12 others to port later. No injuries were reported.

Wales Gas Blast Kills 45 in Mine

ABERTILLY, Wales (AP)—A searing blast of explosive gas ripped through the Six Bells Colliery Tuesday, killing 45 men working 1,000 feet underground.

Rescue teams hacked through a half-mile wall of fallen rock and debris in the coal mine to reach the last eight bodies Tuesday night.

Then stretcher bearers hoisted victims to the surface where weeping wives and children had waited hours for news of the trapped men.

ROCKS CRASH DOWN

The blast sent a dusty gush of air through the explosion area a mile and a quarter from the main shaft of the mine in the south Wales hills. It brought tons of rocks crashing down to the level where the miners were working.

Mine officials had held out little hope for the survival of the trapped men because of deadly carbon monoxide gas.

Canaries, taken down by early rescue teams to test for the gas, died as soon as they reached the pit bottom.

SOBS OF ANGUISH

Tearful women and grave, grimy-faced men stood silently at the pithead while the rescuers tunneled through the rock.

But the news that the canaries had died sent a sob of anguish through the waiting people.

Men and women knelt and prayed.

Britain's worst mine disaster during this century was at Senghenydd, Glamorgan, in 1913, where 439 died.

Russia Will Test Rockets In Pacific

LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union will test new types of powerful multi-stage carrier rockets in the Pacific between July 5 and 31, the official Russian news agency Tass said Tuesday night.

It said the rockets would be landed in the vicinity of the Marshall Islands, a United States-administered trust, and British-owned Gilbert Islands.

A carrier rocket without its final stage will be launched into the central Pacific, the announcement said. It will be similar to one launched into the Pacific last January.

This, the announcement said, will be the same type of carrier which launched the Soviet dummy space ship last May 15.

It said the new firing would take place "in accordance with the (Soviet) program for further scientific research and experimental designing in the sphere of space problems."

Prestige at New Low Over U2, Fulbright Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee declared Tuesday an "unfortunate series of blunders" by the Eisenhower administration in the U2 spy plane episode caused a worldwide loss of confidence in the United States.

"Lack of confidence leads to neutralism, and I dare say this was a contributing factor to the riots in Japan protesting our new treaty," said Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.).

As a result of "bumbling and fumbling" in handling the U2 matter, he said, U.S. prestige has plummeted to a new low.

Fulbright's speech was in connection with formal submission of his committee's report on a closed-door investigation of the U2 incident, the rock on which the summit talks foundered in mid-May.

The committee, with only minor dissents, found the administration had mishandled the spy-plane matter. But the report's words were much less harsh than those Fulbright used Tuesday.

Senate Republican Leader Dirksen of Illinois said events at the summit conference and in Tokyo "will forge greater strength in some of the less strong links of the chains that bind us as the world's greatest nation under any standards."

In a speech prepared for the Pan-Laconian Federation of America, Dirksen disputed arguments that the summit collapse and the withdrawal of the invitation to visit Japan had hurt President Eisenhower's world standing.

Fulbright restated many of the strongly phrased criticisms he has hurled at the administration since the summit collapse, chiefly that "the gravest mistake was made when the President assumed responsibility for the flight."

While saying that "of course" Soviet Premier Khrushchev wrecked the summit conference, Fulbright said assumption by the White House and State department of a "self-righteous attitude" in the spy plane operation put Khrushchev in a "quite unacceptable position."

Let's Help Sheriffs End Fee System

"Abolition of the fee system is the only way we'll make a significant improvement in Georgia law enforcement."

So said Sheriff Jewell Futch, of Valdosta, president of the Georgia Sheriffs Assn., yesterday. His comment followed the announced opposition to ending the system by the board of directors of the Georgia County Commissioners Assn.

Sheriff Futch is right. And the sheriffs are right in recognizing the fee system for the evil it is. It makes law enforcement a business proposition and in some cases, as with the notorious speed traps, it borders on racketeering. It should be ended on a statewide basis.

Opposition of the commissioners stems from resistance to the salary-budget system. The sheriffs are asking for salary scales ranging from $7,500 to $15,000, graduated in accordance with population. Sheriffs' offices would be operated on a budget basis, approved by the commissioners. Fees collected from law enforcement would go into general county funds.

The sheriffs indicate they would be willing to compromise on the salary item if a budget system can be worked out.

We suggest that the two associations get together in the interest of better law enforcement and come up with an acceptable compromise. The commissioners know that what Sheriff Futch says is true but fear any new setup which would be paid for from general funds. This is contrary to their commendable stand for tax equalization, which if carried out would help solve the problem of sheriffs' offices.

The fee system of paying sheriffs and other county officials indeed is inimical to good law enforcement. And the sheriffs deserve commendation and support in their efforts to end it.

Tourists Refuse To Bite Georgia's Fishing Hook

The 1960 General Assembly put the bite on out-of-state residents visiting Georgia for a day or so of fishing.

It did so by passing a ridiculous piece of legislation requiring visiting anglers to pay the price of a year-round non-resident's license for the privilege of fishing in Georgia even for a single day.

Game and Fish Commissioner Fulton Lovell yesterday pointed out the fruits of this bit of folly. Georgia's transient fishermen business, formerly quite lucrative, has been slashed to minnow-size proportions.

This is but another instance of how Georgia, despite its appeals and campaigns to encourage tourism, kills off the trade by snapping too hard in one way or another at visitors' pocketbooks.

Tourists are fast learning to avoid being played as suckers. But Georgia in all too many instances has failed to learn how to change to appetizing lures.

Unwed Negro Mothers Need Maternity Home

Atlanta needs a maternity home for unmarried Negro mothers. The current exploration of the subject is due.

The Florence Crittenton home for unmarried white mothers is supported by Community Chest money. Negroes contribute to the Chest. While the Chest-supported Child Service Assn. gives what case-worker care it can to white and colored alike, Negroes do lack a Crittenton-type maternity home.

Simply to establish such a home is only part of the problem, however. The other part is to find adoptive homes for Negro babies. Both parts make up the whole problem and must be treated as one. It is a pressing problem, and surely one where combined Negro and white effort is needed.

The Community Council of Atlanta, Inc., which is surveying our special needs, can be of great service by starting a thorough study of the maternity home and adoptive home problem, leading to coordination of government and private efforts to meet it.

New Laws Won't Stop The Big Move South

Sen. Clifford Case (R-NJ) says a new minimum wage law and new standards for unemployment pay will help "neutralize the raiding of the industrial plants of the North by the Southern states."

He's wrong. The South has much to offer in addition to a lower wage framework. It has the natural resources the East and North do not have. It has the human resources (no matter what the minimum wage scale happens to be) that the move from agrarian to industrial emphasis creates. It has an increasing share of the markets, which is also a big factor in industrial migration.

The South should direct its concern not outward to threats from New Jersey senators, but inward. If our appeal diminishes it will not be because of what the "raided" states do, but because of what we do (or don't do) ourselves.

There are two areas of primary concern. One was expressed yesterday by University of Georgia professor Dr. Raymond Payne. He said competition by hundreds of Georgia communities for industry slows down industrial development. This is why area development is being emphasized in some sections.

The second area of primary concern is found in our school crisis. A state without public schools is in no shape to go "raiding."

We Feel Better About Sen. Kennedy's Attitude

We feel better about Sen. John F. Kennedy's attitude toward the South, now that confusion concerning it has been sorted out.

Last Friday The New York Times front page carried the headline, "Kennedy Assures Liberals He Seeks No Help From South." Yesterday The Times headlined, "Kennedy Appeals to South for Support at Convention."

Misunderstanding and misquotation resulted in the earlier stories in New York papers, Kennedy headquarters says. The Herald Tribune and the Daily News said he had discussed with New York liberals a breakup of the North-South conservative coalition in Congress by uniting liberals under his presidency. A Kennedy spokesman said this was not true.

It is true, of course, that such change in Congress will occur and has been occurring for some time.

What makes us feel better is Sen. Kennedy's repudiation of any effort to play on regional bias against the South or to use sectional division as a political tool to gain nomination.

Ike's Report Accepted With Prayer He's Right

The most charitable partisan comment on President Eisenhower's report to the nation on his Asian trip is provided by Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson.

The senator said he "hoped and prayed" the President was correct in believing the tour had produced beneficial effects for the free world. Certainly this view is shared by all Americans who have been pained and concerned by the disappointments to the President and to national policies of events of recent weeks.

There is no use to gloss over these events. The President and the nation have suffered serious setbacks. The Eisenhower crusade for peace and his image as a man of peace have been blunted.

Whether the final outcome would have been the same without these blunders we will never know. But shrewd Communist leaders seized upon the situation to try to frighten the West, to split our alliances and to attempt to interfere in the American election.

While it seems obvious that Moscow had decided before the U2 incident not to deal with the outgoing administration, wrecking of the disarmament conference is a further effort to exploit the genuine desire for peace.

If the Eisenhower tour has served only one purpose in alerting the world to Communist insincerity it has been worthwhile. But even the President found it a bit difficult to turn the summit and Japanese disasters into triumphs.

Capt. Thomas Rendered Fine Service to City

Police Capt. Marvin L. Thomas passed away Tuesday, closing out a career of 28 years of valued service to Atlanta. As a result of that service, Atlanta is a better, safer place to live.

Capt. Thomas founded the School Safety Patrol and organized the first patrol trip to Washington two decades ago. His first group included 40 students tucked into a single railroad car. Last year 3,000 school patrolmen made the trip in three special trains.

For a number of years he was head of the police traffic bureau. Largely because of his efforts Atlanta installed a progressive traffic signal system, a system of one-way streets, off-street parking and other improvements. He also served as Atlanta's first traffic engineer.

We salute him for his splendid contributions and join with family and friends in sorrow at his passing.

The 'Cause' Has Suffered a Blow

Over in one edge of the becalmed shark pool of Georgia politics, a bubble has risen. Roy Harris has bitten Marvin Griffin.

Mr. Harris is circulating to his friends around the state a cruelly sympathetic assault on the former governor. It notes the graft and corruption that soiled the Griffin administration.

"For some reason or other, Marvin Griffin did nothing about it," Mr. Harris says. "He attempted to ride out the storm and lay the blame on the Atlanta newspapers."

"Now, here is the real tragedy," Marvin, as governor, was the leader of the segregation forces. When the Atlanta newspapers began to expose the graft and corruption, the leaders in the other Southern states began to fall away. "Our whole effort fell flat. Our organization, on a Southwide basis, floundered. The blow-up of Marvin Griffin's administration was the most severe blow the cause has had during the last six years."

Mr. Harris, who was chief conductor of those anti-Negro meetings that used to be held around Georgia, can speak with the disarming candor of a political realist when he wishes to state the truth. He did so in advising Mr. Griffin not to try a comeback in 1962.

But he errs when he blames the shrinking of anti-Negro extremism altogether on Mr. Griffin's discredited record, skillful though the barb may be.

While corrupt men were pillaging the treasury, then-Gov. Griffin visited Arkansas and helped precipitate the Little Rock disaster with an inflammatory speech. Such oratory, as much as the pillage, was a reason the "whole effort fell flat."

Mr. Griffin did not do all the orating. Mr. Harris did a good bit of it. Somewhere along the circuit the people tired of the weary old wahoos. They began to look for sense behind the hot smoke.

They do not see the sense of it any more when Mr. Harris calls, as he still does, for a platform of "keeping the schools open and segregated" and stops there. While most Georgians may want it so, they learned from the Sibley commission, if not before, that it cannot be so. They have left the old evangelists of ruin to flounder and fall flat at meetings they do not want to be seen entering. They seek now something sensible that they can live with.

Extremism is indeed faltering. The Griffin administration's corruption did help discredit it. But in fairness to Mr. Griffin, let us note "the most severe blow the cause has had" was dealt by the "cause" unto itself: It underestimated the common sense of Georgians.

Candidates Make Pitch to Suburbia

WASHINGTON—The land of the split-level house and the backyard barbecue pit—which forms a vastly enlarged American middle class—is to be the decisive battleground in this fall's presidential election. Far more even than they did four years ago, both parties are now centering their appeals on suburbia.

For it is to suburbia that the voters have been moving in a long, immense, sustained leap. The Census Bureau now discloses that the population of suburban areas adjoining major cities has grown by an incredible 47.2 per cent in the last decade.

And this change has snowballed as it has gone along; it has been faster in the four years since the last presidential election than it had been in the four years before that election.

Suburbia is largely a feminine creation, with its opportunities for flowers, innumerable women's club luncheons and other things which make up the good life as it is seen in 1960. (It is only the old man who must wrestle with the daily commuting.)

So it is that on every day and in every way the Republican Party and the Democratic Party alike will offer what might be called a soft-hard sell for the presidential candidates. It will be a soft sell in that the accent will be on a quiet, well-tailored dignity, so far as may be possible, in tune with the gardens of suburbia and the nearby country club.

It will be a hard sell in that down underneath all this amiability

Primaries Rivals Could Be Mates

WASHINGTON—Those two erstwhile rivals of the Democratic primaries, Sen. Kennedy and Sen. Humphrey may end up as running mates. The possibility of a Kennedy-Humphrey ticket was supposedly explored at a recent meeting between the two men which was arranged at the instigation of the front-runner.

Sen. Humphrey has publicly advocated the governor of his home state, Orval Freeman, for vice president.

Sunday, when questioned as to the possibility of taking second spot himself with the man he fought so vigorously in Wisconsin and West Virginia, Sen. Humphrey said, "I do not want it. I do not seek it. I would not run for it—I did that once. I would not reject it. My candidate is Orval Freeman."

Sen. Kennedy could not be reached. Aides insist he is "uncommitted" on his choice.

One tangible outcome of the meeting between the two was an apology to Sen. Humphrey from Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., a Kennedy ally who in West Virginia questioned Sen. Humphrey's war record. He told Humphrey both in person and in a letter his statements were "unnecessary and unwarranted."

Another Roosevelt-Eleanor has said that Sen. Humphrey would be the "local man" for Sen. Kennedy to have as a running mate.

Sen. Humphrey has yet to endorse Sen. Kennedy publicly for the nomination. Friends say home problems have inhibited him. Some Minnesotans still entertain reservations about Sen. Kennedy's farm record. Sen. Humphrey is up for reelection this year.

The 49-year-old Humphrey would bring to Kennedy more than delegates, although his 67½ votes would make Kennedy's

If Kennedy can't make it, he may have enough angry support to demand that a candidate be named who is suitable to him, and that is where Adlai Stevenson comes in. . . . Despite Kennedy's denials, a Stevenson-Kennedy ticket is a distinct possibility if Jack doesn't get the top spot.

Police Escorts for Klan Give Appearance Of Sanction of Law, Marietta Complain

Marietta—Two police-escorted motorcades passed through Marietta Saturday. The first was a celebration for a young couple who had won the "June Bride" popularity contest. We all felt a thrill at the motorcycle escort and attendant ceremonies. Then, a few hours later, came a motorcade of about 75 KKK cars, also heralded by a Cobb County motorcycle police escort. I cannot stifle a feeling of contempt for these people who espouse hatred for Catholics, Jews and Negroes. By whose authority are they accorded a police escort, with sirens screaming, thus giving the apparent sanction of the law to their discredited organization?

Atlanta Hits Kennedy For Too Much Power

Atlanta—I simply do not feel that Kennedy is the man to lead our country. I feel that he is not capable. For one thing, he has too much power behind him. I don't think he has the intelligence, the know-how. In fact, the only thing I think he has is money and backing, mainly from his father.

All Should Join Press In Dispute With Courts

In the Cartersville Tribune-News

This writer has been disturbed during recent months as the result of some tragic decisions rendered by Superior Court judges on the Fulton County bench, along with certain decisions handed down by our higher courts. It appears to this writer that some of our judges have taken a biased and bilious slant at newspapers in general, and at some editorial and news writers on the Atlanta newspapers in particular.

For instance, we have never found reason to agree with Judge Durwood Pye, who seems to us to have adopted the Atlanta newspapers as his "pet peeve."

We thoroughly agree with Judge Pye's ruling that a judge, while sitting upon the bench, is the sole arbiter of what goes on in his presence and in his courtroom. However, we can never agree with Pye's ruling that he also has jurisdiction over what happens on the sidewalks and streets adjoining the courthouse in which he sits as a judge.

A point in question is this observation:

If Judge Pye can lay such offensive rules down and declare he does have authority over what goes on upon the streets and sidewalks nearest to the courtroom in which he sits as judge, what is to hinder him from deciding that he also has jurisdiction over what goes on along streets and sidewalks, one block, two blocks or even 10 blocks away from his courtroom?

The writer of these lines does not labor under the hazard of being hailed into court and find himself being roughly handled at any time, because Judge J. L. Davis has never shown the slightest inclination to muzzle the press. Rather, Judge Davis often goes out of his way to show his appreciation of what good the press can do, in cooperation with the operation of all our courts.

But we are deeply concerned, as we deliberate upon the fate of those who have fallen under the bone of Superior Court judges in the Fulton courts, because a few judges in other courts in Georgia, taking a cue from edicts from their "big city" judges, might begin handing out jail sentences to those who may labor in vineyards other than the Fulton County circuit courts.

If a judge can "get away" with such high-handed attitudes toward the public, what has become of that bedrock statement, in one of the first amendments to the Constitution of the United States?—"Congress shall pass no laws abridging the freedom of the press."

If we understand the English language, that constitutional amendment sets out the fact that even Congress shall not interfere with the freedom of the press!

If Congress has no such power, then by what stretch of the imagination does a Superior Court judge in Georgia arrogate to himself the right or duty to claim he can control what goes into the news columns of a newspaper, which is simply trying to keep the public informed about what is going on? It does seem to this writer—let us state without malice—that the time has certainly arrived in Georgia when the people should join with newspapers to bring back into a few of the Superior Courts some semblance of old-fashioned operation of justice in our courts here in Georgia.

Our cold war adversaries have labeled Korea an American satellite. She isn't, but taking them at their word, doesn't our behavior in the Korea crisis compare rather well with Soviet behavior in the Hungarian uprising of 1956?

Are we on the right track at last, however gropingly, toward the knock of collaboration with friendly peoples?

He Just Wanted His Shoes Back; They Thought His Feet Very Nice

SEOUL, Korea—We are back here at the Bando Hotel in Seoul after front-line looks at the Communists across the 38th parallel but I was never so nervous in the war zone as I am now. You see, I put my shoes out in the hall for a polish job and now I'm wondering if I will ever get them back. This is an uncomfortable feeling for a man who thinks he should have shoes in case of a quick run. I cannot speak one word of Korean and the maids and floor boys can understand but a couple in English.

This I know, because every few minutes I've been asking about my shoes.

"Very nice," said the boy when I asked about the cordovans.

"Never mind all that, when are they coming back?"

"Very nice polish."

I tried to get it across by pointing to my feet and I pretended to be walking away. I pointed to the socks.

"Very nice socks."

"Not the socks," I said, "the bare feet."

"Very nice feet."

I feel naked without my shoes. I keep wondering what would happen should a fire break out. I could dash into the lobby not wearing pants better than I could without shoes. A bare-foot man seems so helpless.

This shine costs nothing, a service of the hotel, but I would pay most any price to get my shoes back right now.

I tried to bribe the boy into hurrying it up. He wouldn't take the money. He thought I was trying to pay him for the shine. He shook his head and smiled.

"Very nice polish." He added a "sir" now.

The boy and a hall full of maids thought it strange to see me walking barefoot. They giggled and followed me. I went from door to door, checking the shoes which were out in the hall. I thought maybe they had put mine in front of someone else's room.

There were black shoes and brown shoes and tan shoes. There were all shapes and sizes, but none of them were mine.

"Nice shoes," the boy said.

I know, I told him, but not mine. I wanted mine. "Mine," I said, and again pointed to my feet.

"Yes, very nice feet."

The maids laughed. They thought I wanted them to brag on my feet. In a chorus they said, "Yes, very nice feet."

My feet are the last things I need anyone to brag on, although they are perfect size nine, C width, so I led my posse back toward room 824.

"You go in," said the boy. "Shoes be back very nice polish."

When, I don't know. After each paragraph I type I get up and go to the door. But still no shoes. And if ever I do get them back, my "very nice feet" are going to be in them from now on. Shoe shining is one Seoul service I can get along without.

Wait at Airport Inspires Love

I have a new verse that I have typed out and pasted on the flyleaf of my Bible. It reads, "Greater love hath no man than this, that he wait for his friend all night at an airport." That is a verse which will inspire me from now on.

It came about this way—Bishop Garber invited me to be the preacher for the Virginia Annual Conference. My first sermon would be Monday, at noon, to the class of young ministers being received into the conference. The conference was meeting at Fredericksburg and I made my plans to fly to Washington, arriving there at 7 o'clock on Monday morning.

A minister friend planned to meet me at the airport in Washington. We would have breakfast together and drive down to the conference in plenty of time. But I was notified that the flight I had reservations on had been canceled and the next available flight would be noon the next day. But there was a chance I could get on a plane leaving at 1 o'clock in the morning.

I phoned my friend and told him the situation and that I might get into Washington at 2:45 a.m. but for him not to meet me at that terrible hour.

However, he was there when the plane came in but I wasn't. I had been left behind in the "standby" line in Atlanta.

There was one other flight for Washington that night, leaving at 3 o'clock. So I waited for it and luckily got the last available seat. Just as the sun was rising over the Potomac we came into the nation's capital city. As I walked down the steps, I saw my friend waiting for me. When I wasn't on the earlier plane, he decided to wait those two hours on the mere chance I would make it.

I have never been so glad to see anybody in my life. Being up all night long and the uncertainty of making my engagement had whipped me down. But then I realized that my friend had been sitting up, too, and waiting for me. I felt refreshed and strengthened. His name is Carol Fink, a Methodist preacher in Alexandria, Va.

That day at the conference I spoke to more than 2,000 people about The One who sat up all night and prayed and then was crucified the next day. I talked about how He loved us so much that He was willing to die for us. My friend in Virginia loved me enough to sacrifice a night's sleep for me and I will always love him for it.

How much more ought I to love my friend who sacrificed himself on Calvary. And through His sacrifice I gain not a mere chance to speak, but eternal salvation. Thinking along this line makes one of my favorite hymns mean even more to me—"What a friend we have in Jesus, all our sins and griefs to bear."

Miss Dickerson Was First Plank In Adamsville Reform Program

Miss Maureen Dickerson, who took over as superintendent of Georgia's trouble-dogged State Training School for Girls in November 1953, has been asked to resign. The reason given up to this point has been so ambiguous as to be downright mysterious. "Too lax . . . not firm enough with personnel," said William Ireland, Miss Dickerson's immediate superior. Maybe he will elucidate, maybe not. In any case, Maureen Dickerson, stunned and shaken, promptly responded with a letter of resignation and has declined to enter any discussion of the matter.

He hired her, she said. He had a right to fire her. For the good of the school and its troubled inmates she didn't propose to defend herself or become a party to any commotion of any kind.

In a word, Maureen Dickerson, who came to us at a time when our school was a national disgrace and was hailed as a sort of female savior, is prepared to go quietly.

She can, of course, do as she pleases but I don't think we, the people who accepted her services so gratefully back in 1953, should let her go without one faint thank-you, one backward glance.

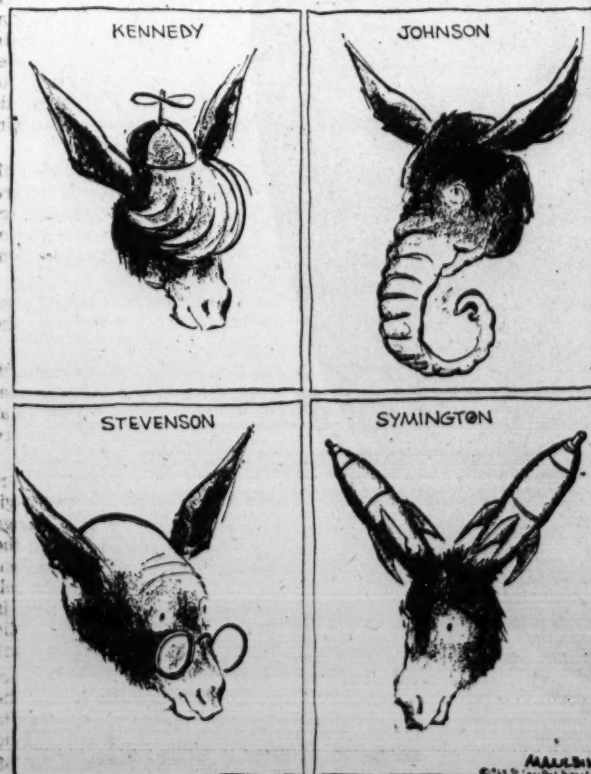

It's easy to forget how bad things were in the rickety old buildings at Adamsville where Georgia consigned its problem girls. At one time I made quite a study of the subject and I had to go back through the files to, as we say in court, refresh my recollection. And the reading of those old clippings was by no means refreshing to the spirit or morale. Grand juries decried "cruel and inhuman treatment bordering on criminal acts" in the pre-Maureen Dickerson days. Surly, sadistic keepers called the girls names, asked for electric fences to keep them in, shaved their heads if they were unruly. Editorial writers called the school "the shame of the state" and the governor appealed to the public for help and guidance in effecting a reform program within the school.

Maureen Dickerson was the first plank in that reform program—a former teacher, social worker and professional worker with Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls. She was no hard-bitten jailer but a pretty woman with a soft voice and an easy-going, leisurely manner, who clung to a naive-seeming belief that patience and affection and work to do can produce wonders in the toughest, mangiest little orphan of the slums.

To date I have heard of no challenge to Miss Dickerson's methods with girls. I have seen her bring girls out of blue jeans into pretty dresses, enlist the aid of such sympathetic women as members of the Peachtree Pilot Club to adopt "little sisters" in the school to give them somebody outside to care about them. I have heard how she has found jobs for girls leaving the school and worked killing hours to iron out problems for girls.

Undoubtedly being human. Miss Dickerson has erred on occasion. We don't know what the error of firing magnitude was. But lest we forget, she dug us out of a first-class mess at Adamsville seven years ago.

N.Y. Bus Strike Affects 550,000

NEW YORK (UPI)—A spreading wildcat strike by bus drivers crippled New York City's huge bus operations Tuesday and forced an estimated 550,000 regular riders to walk or find other transportation.

There were indications that the spreading strike of Fifth Avenue Coach Lines drivers might last through the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

Union officials denounced the walkout as unauthorized. Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Union, said it was the work of a "bunch of crackpots and birdbrains."

The strike was against the 21 lines of the omnibus division of the Fifth Avenue Coach Co. As the evening rush hour began, a company spokesman said all 21 lines either were out of service or on the verge of going out. Seventeen other lines in Manhattan still were operating normally, the spokesman said.

Workers hustled about in 90-degree temperatures to find taxis or subways to get home from their jobs.

The drivers began walking off the job Monday night in protest against a change in work schedules.

Plane Downed, 5 Found After Ordeal

PECOS, Tex. (AP)—An oil survey team Tuesday found a New Orleans family of five, including three children, who spent much of Monday and all Monday night huddled around their downed airplane.

They had no water or food during their ordeal. Temperatures soared above 100 much of the time.

The family was that of Thomas Richard Young, 31, insurance company executive.

They were flying from Brownwood, Tex., to El Paso and put down at Midland for refueling around noon. The plane's engine failed a half hour or so after takeoff but glided to a safe landing on a rough emergency airstrip hacked out of the rugged country about 75 miles directly west of here.

The family included Young, his wife, Lynn; Tommy 8; Ralph 7; and Sheri, 5. Young's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Young of Bangs, Tex.

Ike-Likers Jeer; Japan Rally Flops

TOKYO (UPI)—Heralded new anti-government demonstrations by leftist students flopped here Tuesday when less than 1,000 of an expected 30,000 members of the militant Zengakuren Federation showed up. They were heckled by rightist counter-demonstrators shouting, "We like Eisenhower."

A force of more than 1,000 police prevented any violence. The leftist students, with many of their leaders in jail, appeared tired and listless. Police said most of the students were too busy cramming for exams to take to the streets.

At the same time, Foreign Minister Aichiichi Fujiyama declared that recent anti-government demonstrations had "stained" Japan's international prestige. He called upon Japanese envoys in Asian and Pacific areas to "explain the real state of affairs in Japan."

Fujiyama, mentioned as a possible compromise selection to succeed Prime Minister Kishi, spoke at a special conference of diplomatic chiefs in the Asia-Pacific area.

"It cannot be denied that Japan has stained its international reputation by such domestic situations as the forced request for the postponement of the scheduled visit of President Eisenhower to Japan and the riotous anti-pact demonstrations."

Only about 800 leftist students were on hand for Tuesday's brief sitdown protest in front of the national Diet.

Tibet Revolt Is Admitted By Red China

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Red China officially admitted Tuesday that Communist soldiers are fighting to put down a new revolt in Tibet. Refugees have reported guerrilla warfare for weeks in the mountain kingdom.

The Nepali Foreign Office announced a note from Peiping said armed forces had been sent to quell disturbances by rebels.

Some Communist soldiers are in a zone along Nepal's border which the Chinese promised on March 21 would be kept demilitarized, the Chinese note said.

His selection was viewed as a move to set up a Soviet spying operation at this country's doorstep in the Caribbean.

Koudriavtsev is now minister counsellor of the Soviet Embassy in Paris.

He was first secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Paris.

He was first secretary of the Soviet Legation (later embassy) in Canada in 1942-45 and one of the early bosses of the espionage ring in Canada. The operation was exposed when Igor Gouzenko, a code clerk in the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa, defected to the West on Sept. 5, 1945.

One of the main aims of the espionage operation was to obtain information on U. S. and British atomic research through their co-operative work with Canada.

Atlanta 6th In Census Increase

So far, the Atlanta metropolitan area stands sixth in the nation in numerical increase in its population in the past 10 years, according to the Atlanta field office of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

The "so far" qualification was used because reports have not as yet been received from all of the approximately 180 areas located over the country.

The absentee cities include highly populated areas as the Los Angeles-Long Beach, New York-Northeastern New Jersey, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Cleveland and San Francisco.

But, on the basis of the 94 areas in the country for which preliminary reports have been issued by the Bureau of the Census, the Atlanta area's pick up of 287,360 residents from 1950 to 1960 inclusive led all of them except the Tampa-St. Petersburg area's 351,517, Denver's 311,033, Minneapolis - St. Paul's 326,027, Phoenix's 320,262, and San Diego's 446,714.

In rate of increase, the Atlanta area stood twelfth among the 94 areas heard from, its 39.5 per cent gain being exceeded only by El Paso's 59.4, Fort Worth's 44.8, the 53.9 per cent of the Lubbock, Texas, area, Tampa-St. Petersburg's 65.9, Albuquerque's 78.7, Denver's 50.8, the 45.7 per cent of the Lorain - Elyria area, Phoenix's 96.5, San Diego's 80.2, Tucson's 85.6 per cent, and Wichita's 53.9 per cent, Merrill C. Lofton, Commerce Department, said a study of the Census Bureau figures showed.

As just about everyone in the Atlanta area now knows, its 1960 population has been determined on a preliminary basis to be 1,014,349. This compared with 726,989 residents counted in 1950.

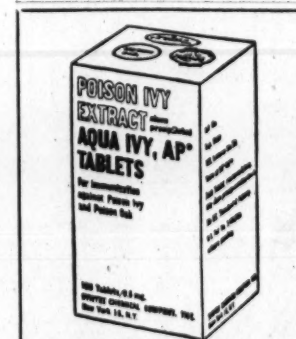

The 1,014,349 count of this year placed the Atlanta area fourth from the top in total population among the 94 areas thus far listed, with the Minneapolis - St. Paul area at the head of the list, followed by Milwaukee's 1,186,875, and then Seattle's 1,096,778. The 1,003,522 credited to the San Diego area fell just short of Atlanta's count.

Russians Sold On Communism, Shartzer Says

"The Russian people are more sold on communism than we are on democracy," William B. Shartzer told members of the Civitan Club of Atlanta Tuesday.

Shartzer, who recently returned from a five-day visit to Russia, said, "I didn't win an argument all the time I was there." Shartzer was in Russia on the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce good-will visit.

The speaker warned of Russia's military strength and showed pictures of Russian weapons in the Moscow May Day parade. "The Russian officers know their missiles in terms of specific targets, London, Los Angeles or Rio de Janeiro, not in terms of range in miles as we think of it," he said.

Sunday Magazine Will Feature Roaring Missiles, Women Drivers

Look for these interesting articles coming in Sunday's Atlanta Journal and Constitution Magazine:

MISSILES MARK THIS 4TH WITH BIG BANG . . . Twentieth Century fireworks come in big military rockets and missiles, a field in which the mighty U.S. has made giant strides in the two and a half years since our first satellite streaked into orbit. Magazine staff writer William Hammack recounts the progress we've made in the military supremacy race. Accompanying the article are full-color action shots of our missiles.

HE WON'T TAKE HER ANYWHERE . . . This 19-year-old wife is bored and unhappy because her spouse won't take her out. She thinks he doesn't love her any more. Marie Rose, in her regular column, suggests a tactful way to solve this problem.

WOMEN WORRY TRAFFIC OFFICERS . . . "I'd rather tangle with a drunk than give a woman a traffic ticket," moaned one patrolman when approached on the subject of lady drivers. Zany capers and fantastic motoring maneuvers are sometimes funny, usually exasperating and always dangerous, but magazine staff writer Lucy Justus finds that women don't have an exclusive on traffic violations.

Ike Defers News Parley Until July 6

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower will not hold a news conference this week, but will definitely meet with reporters on Wednesday, July 6, White House said Tuesday.

The Chief Executive held his last news conference seven weeks ago on May 11.

Asked why the President was foregoing a meeting with the press Wednesday, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty replied: "He has the King here and he has a heavy schedule."

This referred to the visit of the King and Queen of Thailand, who arrived today for a five-day state visit.

DO FAITH HEALERS HEAL?

Are the so-called "faith healers" more likely to cure you or to kill you? There are cases on record of both miraculous successes and criminal failures. Is there really such a thing as a "healing power," and, if so, how many of today's Bible-shouting evangelists really have it and how many are out-and-out fakes. The current issue of Redbook tells of scientific tests conducted to find out if a special power does exist...reports on case histories from Christian Science practitioners and the Roman Catholic Church. GOOD HEALTH: Conjunctivitis Needs Quick Attention

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: What causes the upper and lower eyelids to be sore and itchy with pus in the corners?—L. R.

What is the cause of redness around the tip of the eyelids? Is there a cure?—Mrs. M. F.

Soreness (and sometimes pus) in the corner of the eyelid can be due to an acute inflammation of the conjunctiva, or inner lining of the lids. From this we get the name conjunctivitis. A more familiar term, pink eye, is a form of the same thing.

Is there a cure? Generally we'll say yes, but to achieve that cure we must, of course, ask the question: What is the cause? What inflames that lining of the eyelid?

One big cause is germs, and they may be of various types—staphylococcus, streptococcus, the diphtheria germ, the tuberculosis organism, and others, although the first two are the most likely ones.

This is the form of the disease we know as pink eye. It can be highly contagious. You know how pink eye sometimes can sweep through a school. That is one reason why a case of pink eye should have prompt attention.

There's another reason for giving conjunctivitis due attention.

In the presidential election of 1956 the Prohibition Party polled 41,937 votes.

Cases can be acute, or they can develop into chronic cases, and in that event one wants to guard against the formation of ulcers, scarring of the cornea (the surface layer of the eyeball) or other eye damage. In chronic and stubborn cases, the doctor will consider the possibility of trachoma.

By and large, I believe, you will find these cases to be the result of one or another of the germs, and thus treated by the appropriate antibiotics, depending on the type of germ.

It is well to remember that something else may be inflaming the lid lining, however, either with or without the presence of germs. (A combination of the two is not unlikely.)

In the case of Mrs. M. F., there may be the possibility of allergy to cosmetics, since sometimes one may be sensitive to eyelash preparations, eyelid shading, or even face powder. By the same token, dust or chemical fumes may be an irritant, or in season pollen, so if the eye trouble comes and goes, a person may be able to track the cause to one of these sensitivities. Once the irritation has started, it is that much easier for germs to find their way in and continue the inflammation.

Can a person have high blood sugar without knowing it?—E. W.

Yes, it can happen without causing any symptoms. When blood sugar is high enough to cause it to appear in the urine, however, the patient usually begins to notice such symptoms as excessive thirst, frequency of urination, genital irritation.

My son, 11, grinds his teeth while asleep. What causes this, and should he have medical attention?—Mrs. L. E. T.

Tension may be the cause—being overtired, or upset or whatever. Before getting medical attention you may well want to have your dentist look over the situation because malocclusion (that the teeth don't "bite" properly) may be a factor.

Dr. Molner is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Methodist Leaders Hail Moore By Long Distance at Parley Here

By JIM BENTLEY

Speaking over a special long-distance telephone hookup to a filled auditorium at the First Methodist Church, high church officials Tuesday night praised the 50-year ministry of Atlanta's Bishop Arthur J. Moore.

The calls concluded a special program by the Methodist Board of Missions honoring the bishop, who is presiding this week for the last time over the North Georgia Methodist Conference.

Calling from Glen Harbor, Mich., was Bishop Richard C. Raines, president of the Division of World Missions. Bishop A. Frank Smith, president of the Division of National Missions, called from Houston, Tex., and Mrs. J. Fount Tillman, president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, called from Lewisburg, Tenn.

Earlier in the evening a young Columbus pastor and his wife were commissioned as missionaries to Rhodesia. They are the Rev. Thomas L. Curtis, associate pastor of St. Luke Church in Columbus, and his wife, Margaret, are both natives of Albany.

Retired and retiring ministers of the conference were paid special tribute Tuesday as delegates from some 575 churches jammed the auditorium of the First Methodist Church.

Dr. Charles L. Allen, pastor of Atlanta's Grace Methodist Church, delivered an address of appreciation to the elder pastors.

After praising Bishop Moore, as the "greatest preacher I've ever heard," Dr. Allen said "retirement is a state with a glorious future."

In response, Dr. Walter S. Robinson, associate pastor of Decatur First Church since his retirement some 14 years ago, said ministers do not have to stop preaching altogether when they retire. Many retired pastors, he said, serve as supply and associate pastors, thereby continuing their careers as preachers—at a more leisurely pace.

Two district superintendents announced their retirement. Bishop Moore awarded what he called "an earned degree of G.G.M.: God's Good Man" to the Rev. Jesse W. Veatch of LaGrange and the Rev. J. Hamby Barton of Rome.

Also Tuesday, the Rev. Comer Brownlow of Stone Mountain reported total church membership in the conference at 203,605, an increase of 2,307 over last year. Total value of church buildings is now $55,112,462, an increase of $3,308,885.

Several young ministers were admitted to the conference on trial — a two-year probationary period. Several others were admitted as fulltime preachers.

Sheriffs' Salary Goal Still Firm

Commissioners Fight Proposal

Spokesmen for Georgia sheriffs Tuesday reaffirmed their goal for abolition of the fee payment system, despite mounting opposition from county commissioners.

But the sheriffs also hold out hope for compromise, particularly in the dollar amounts to be paid sheriffs in lieu of fees.

ABOLITION NEEDED
Sheriff Jewell Futch of Valdosta, president of the Georgia Sheriffs Assn., commented, "Abolition of the fee system is the only way we'll make a significant improvement of Georgia law enforcement."

And association attorney John L. Jernigan of Covington said, "We're going to fight the fee system."

Abolition of the fee system first was urged last year by the association. The proposal was defeated in the 1960 General Assembly, but the association last week voted to re-submit the bill in 1961.

HOSTILE MOTIONS
Organized opposition came to light for the first time Monday when board members of the Georgia County Commissioners Assn. entertained two hostile motions during an Atlanta meeting.

Opposition revolved around the proposed sheriffs' pay, which would range from $7,500 to $15,

112 Hogs Killed In Cholera Outbreak

DAWSONVILLE (AP)—An outbreak of hog cholera killed 112 hogs on two farms in Dawson County in northeast Georgia.

Dr. C. A. Blount, a Gainesville veterinarian, said the disease killed 71 out of 85 head on one farm and all 45 head on a second farm.

000, according to each county's population.

But sheriff's attorney Jernigan stressed compromise is possible on the salary amounts.

FLEXIBLE ON AMOUNT

"We're flexible on the amount. Certainly we think the pay should be sufficient to interest good men. Frankly, I don't know what kind of man we can get for $5,000 to $6,000 a year."

"We're certainly not trying to hold up the smaller or poorer counties."

"We're going to have meetings on a congressional district basis. You can be sure we're going to work on it."

Sheriff Futch, recently elected to head the sheriff's organization for the sixth consecutive year, commented:

REAPPORTION TIME

"Establishment of a salary-budget method of paying sheriffs would give them more time to investigate serious crimes instead of spending time making traffic arrests."

"I think we'll be willing to adjust the salary amounts, provided we have a budget system which lets us know what we have to operate on."

As co-chairmen of this committee, it will be their responsibility to contact the chief executive officers of more than 2,500 firms pointing out the value of offering employees a deferred payment plan of giving. All three chairmen have had considerable fund-raising experience.

Dryden was a section chairman in the Commerce, Industry and Finance division in last year's United Appeal campaign, and is currently serving on the Community Chest Budget committee.

C. Ort Jenkins

M. E. Grant

He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce finance committee, the Georgia Society of C.P.A.'s, and the Administrative Systems

Grant served as a Community Chest campaign chairman in 1957 and prior to that was chairman of the Commerce, Industry and Finance Division. He is vice president of the Atlanta Rotary Club, chairman of the Metropolitan Council of Chambers of Commerce, a director of the Buckhead Little League and a trustee of the Georgia Foundation for Independent Colleges.

Jenkins has long been an active supporter of both Community Chest and Red Cross fund-raising activities. In addition he is a director of the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, a member of the newcomers committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Rotary Club, and a deacon in the Second Ponce de Leon Baptist Church.

The goal of this fall's United Appeal campaign has been set at $3,004,640 to provide the necessary operating funds for the 74 agencies of the Community Chest, and for the many humanitarian programs of the Red Cross. Mills B. Lane Jr. is general campaign chairman; John W. Lastinger is executive vice chairman.

COMING SUNDAY

THE RIP SNORTIN' FOURTH!

People today are calmer in their celebration of July 4th. But a few years ago Independence Day in Georgia meant picnics, a big parade down Main Street, political speeches in front of the courthouse, watermelon cutting, budding romance, games and a night sky spectacularly lit with hundreds of fireworks. Frank Wells of The Constitution grows nostalgic and reaches back through the years to recreate the scene.

Panel Blocks Housing Bill

had polled, 17 did not feel adjournment before the conventions was feasible. Many of them, he said, felt the Senate needed more time for hearings and debate on such controversial issues as the medical aid bill.

GOAL UNCHANGED

The others, he said, felt Congress should quit after passing all bills that are absolutely necessary, such as appropriations measures to finance government activities, and put off everything else until next year.

Johnson said the Senate and House should keep pushing, however, for adjournment next week. He said the situation would have to be reviewed at the end of this week and a decision made then.

Senate Republican Leader Dirksen, who held successive legislative conferences Tuesday with President Eisenhower and the GOP policy committee, said it was "even Stephen" whether Congress would quit next week or come back in August.

The House Rules Committee complicated the situation by scuttling a $1.365 billion housing bill considered by Democratic leaders as a "must" before Congress quits. The conservative-dominated committee refused by a 6-6 tie vote to send the measure to the House floor.

But a short while later it removed its roadblock against House consideration of a bill to raise the federal minimum wage gradually from $1 to $1.25 an hour and to extend coverage to 3,500,000 more workers. The committee acted under a threat by House liberals to bypass it and get the bill before the House under a rarely used procedure.

Democratic leaders planned swift action on the measure, perhaps Wednesday. But it was a different story on the Housing bill.

Chairman Smith (D-Va) said the committee did not feel it advisable to clear the complicated measure for action "at this late stage" of the congressional session.

The only way Democratic leaders can get around this roadblock is to resort to a suspension-of-rules that would enable them to bring up the bill but under a procedure requiring a two-thirds majority.

To gain approval under this handicap, they probably would have to trim down the far-reaching House bill and accept a less-ambitious measure already passed by the Senate.

In the Senate, meanwhile, the Finance Committee scheduled two days of public hearings on the medical aid bill amid signs that it was far from agreement on a plan to help the elderly meet their health bills. Five rival plans are before the committee.

Secretary of Welfare Flemming gave the administration's position on the politically hot issue to the committee in testimony behind closed doors Tuesday morning. He will be recalled at Wednesday's public hearing.

Secretary of State Herter appealed to the Senate to restore House cuts in the foreign aid program lest they "weaken the confidence of other free nations" in U.S. leadership.

He appeared before the Senate Appropriations Committee in an effort to restore $500 million of the $500,500,000 eliminated by the House.

Other congressional developments:

1. The Senate approved and sent to the White House a bill extending present income tax rates on corporations and continuing a variety of wartime excise taxes on liquor, cigarettes, cars and other items. The President is expected to sign it before midnight Thursday to forestall a $4 billion loss in revenue.

2. The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to outlaw payola, rigged quiz shows and other deceptive practices in the radio-TV industry.

3. Republican congressional leaders said after conferring with Eisenhower that they expected him to veto an election-year bill that would increase the pay of 1,570,000 government workers. But backers of the salary increase believe they can muster the two-thirds vote needed in the House and Senate to put the raise through despite a veto.

Rockefeller Blast Draws Criticism failed to jell among Democratic ranks.

Rockefeller told fellow governors that more than ever before in history America now stands "more exposed to fatal danger." Once again he called for a $3 billion boost in spending for military and civil defense.

Democrats applauded him. A Republican or two took mild exception in the conference hall of the governors themselves.

But then in a news conference afterward, a question prompted something of an explosion from Underwood, a supporter of Vice President Nixon and the man who will be temporary chairman of the Republican National Convention.

DISCUSSION IMPROPER

"I felt the discussion today perhaps went well beyond what might be proper for a governors' conference discussing civil defense," Underwood said.

He also criticized people who, he said, enter a state and exploit its economic conditions for political purposes. That was an obvious reference to the Democratic primary campaign in West Virginia in which Sen. Kennedy of Massachusetts defeated Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota.

Then he took a swipe at anyone who would exploit national defense for political purposes. Asked whether that was what Rockefeller was doing, the governor replied: "Well, what else could it be?"

He added that Rockefeller's break as were the Westerners—remained in their villas and hotels, preparing to leave as soon as air and train passage became available.

Officially, the Western powers have refused to recognize the right of the Communist nations to decide that the disarmament conference called by East and West was over.

At 10:30 a.m., the normal opening time for the conference, the Western delegates filed into the paneled room at the United Nations palace.

They took their seats and for ten minutes stared at each other and the empty places of the Communist five—the Soviet Union, Rumania, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

Then David Ormsby-Gore of Britain moved to the place of the chairman for the day, removed the place card reading "Rumania" and announced mildly that it appeared that the Communists really were not going to show up.

This surprised nobody since last night Ormsby-Gore had visited Valerian A. Zorin of the Soviet Union, protested strongly at the Communists' walkout tactics and attempts to wind up the session without giving the Westerners a chance to speak. He had asked Zorin if the Communists would change their minds and had received a flat "No."

The Western delegates, in what was officially the 48th meeting of the ten-nation disarmament committee, thanked the members of the U.N. staff. This was not a mere formality but a gesture of support for the U.N. observers and secretaries, who had been formally denounced in a special cies and misleading generalizations.

Polish statement Tuesday morning for having stayed on the job after the Communists walked out.

Secretary of the Army Brucker accused the GAO of playing a numbers game and of relying on bookkeepers and auditors to interpret technical engineering data.

Both the report and the Army denials were made public by a House Armed Services subcommittee after three weeks of closed-door hearings.

The subcommittee, for the moment at least, withheld any comments or conclusions of its own.

Chairman Hardy (D-Va) said merely that release of the report, sent to Congress last May 19, was delayed until the Army had a chance to present its arguments.

The night tragedy struck our town!

On August 6, 1959, the peaceful town of Roseburg, Oregon, was turned into a disaster area. In one split second scores of people were killed and maimed! Who was to blame? What strange tricks of fate brought death to some people, survival to others? How can a tragedy like this be prevented in your town? Until smooth Smirnoff came along, nobody had tried using vodka in a Dry Martini. In fact, ten years ago, only one American in a thousand had ever tasted vodka.

Today, thanks to Smirnoff, vodka drinks are everywhere... and the Vodka Martini is a household word. If you want the world's subtlest, driest Martini, try making it with Smirnoff. And let nobody tell you all vodkas are the same!

6 St. Simons Teens Sentenced in Theft

BRUNSWICK (AP)—Five St. Simons Island youths and a girl were judged delinquent Tuesday and will be sentenced to state training schools for their roles in some 50 burglaries.

Glynn County Juvenile Judge Colon J. Cogdell ordered the six held in local jail pending transfer to the Training School for Boys at Milledgeville and Adamsville in Atlanta for girls.

All received indefinite terms to and when authorities decide they have been rehabilitated or else to continue until they are 21.

The youngsters, mostly from prominent families, admitted participating in various burglaries extending back to 1958.

One boy is now 17 but some of his offenses occurred when he was 16 and he was sentenced as a juvenile.

The girl is 16, one boy is 16, another 15 and two 14.

Cogdell also revoked the driver's license of the girl and one boy and ordered that the others not be entitled to licenses after they leave training school unless he gives permission.

Cogdell did not release the names of the six and declined to allow the press to attend the hearing.

The case was broken after one of the six attempted to pay the bill for a vacation weekend at a Jekyll Island motel with package coins which officers traced to the burglary of the St. Simons Island Moose lodge.

Home Eyed For Unwed Mothers

Atlanta may get a second Florence Crittenton Home for unwed mothers.

Jesse O. Thomas, president of the Atlanta chapter of the Frontiers of America, told leaders of his organization Tuesday night that the new home would be operated by an integrated board.

As a matter of fact, he said, the school would not be designated "for colored only"—it would have the same status as the present Florence Crittenton Home in Chamblee and would be open to anyone.

The first step would be to select the board of directors and the second would be to get the approval of the Atlanta Board of Appeals for a fund-raising drive.

Thomas said $100,000 would be needed. Part will come from the national Florence Crittenton Assn., part from the fund-raising campaign and part from another foundation, yet unnamed.

Miss Mary Louise Allen of Chicago, executive director of the Florence Crittenton Assn., was at the Tuesday meeting to explain the purpose of her organization.

Rains Ease Drought, Aid State Crops

ATHENS — Drought-breaking rains have aided Georgia's crops, the State Crop Reporting Service said Tuesday. "General rains over a large part of the state replenished a generally depleted soil moisture supply," the service said in its weekly report on crop conditions. The report said crops in some parts of the north-central, northwestern and west-central areas still need rain.

Offer of Free Goods Beats Ticket Threat

THOMASVILLE—Policeman Joe Lane found a car occupying two parking places in front of a department store Tuesday morning. The store, having a sale, gave away free merchandise to early shoppers. Lane informed the owner she'd get a ticket if she didn't move the car. She replied she would take four tickets before she would lose her place in a line for the free merchandise.

Prison Term Meted In Auto Death Case

Slayer, 17, Youngest to Face Florida Chair

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Dennis Whitney, 17, confessed killer of seven persons, Tuesday became the youngest white person in Florida history to face the electric chair.

Eleven men and one woman returned a unanimous verdict of murder in the first degree against the red-haired boy from North Hollywood, Calif., in the death of Arthur Keeler, a Miami service station attendant.

Then, on the question of mercy, the Circuit Court jury voted 10-2 against recommending mercy.

Whitney had confessed to killings in California, Arizona and in Miami, usually without provocation, and added that "I just don't give a damn."

He appeared dazed at the verdict. He previously had been convicted at West Palm Beach of killing Mrs. Virginia Selby, a Hialeah housewife.

Air conditioners are tested and rated for BTU's inside a laboratory ... with the temperature set at 95 degrees. Plenty warm, sure. But in the sunlight outside your window where your air conditioner will actually operate, it's likely to be 15 to 20 degrees hotter.

Many people overlook this fact when evaluating an air conditioner solely on BTU's. They forget that the Weather Bureau measures temperatures in the shade. It's likely that your own ideas about your local summer weather seriously underestimates the heat load your air conditioner will have to contend with.

That's why, over and above their big BTU ratings, Fedders Air Conditioners are engineered ... manufactured ... tested to cool effectively at 115 degrees. That's 20 degrees hotter than the temperature at which BTU's are measured. It represents the reserve cooling power your air conditioner needs to work properly in mid-summer sunlight.

It will pay to look beyond mere BTU ratings when selecting your air conditioner. In competitive tests against air conditioners with similar BTU ratings, a Fedders Air Conditioner pulled room temperatures down faster ... held them lower with the outdoor temperature at 115 degrees. Most of the other air conditioners tested failed to cool as well ... or turned off altogether to avoid permanent damage from overheating.

To live happily this summer, make yours a Fedders ... the sun-proof air conditioner.

Ball Park Stirs To Circus Magic

By BILL HOAGLAND

The old spirit of the ever-fabled Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus came back to life in Atlanta Tuesday night in a star-spangled splash of color, clowns, and cotton candy.

Featuring the ageless acts of animal agility, comical clowning, patriotic pageants and breathtaking beauty and bravery on the trapeze and high wire, the circus—now marking its 90th year in operation throughout the 50 states—turned the Ponce de Leon ball park into a field of fantasy for "children of all ages."

Under the supervision of Robert Dover, personnel and performance director from San Antonio, Tex., the many acts filled three short hours in three big rings.

Outstanding among the acts were the trapeze performance of Gerard Soules of Detroit, who executed his famous "heel-catch" during the early part of the show, and a variety act by precision-trained dogs directed by the Stevenson family of England.

Soules, 23, said in an interview later that he had worked on the trapeze since the age of seven, when, inspired by circus acts he saw with his friends as a boy, he urged his father to construct him a trapeze, and he followed the act up from there. He once broke his back doing a television show in Philadelphia, "but I liked my work so much I pulled through," he said.

His specialty is his daring back-heel catch, which he performs after a simulated "fall" from the trapeze.

The Stevenson family, including Henry Stevenson, 70, and Mrs. Louise Stevenson, as well as Patrick, 27; Florence, 28; Diana, 23; Frank, 18, and Billy, 16, have been training their 16 performers, including two poodles, six wire-haired terriers, and two Lakeland Terriers, for over 12 years.

The dogs, performing with horses and ponies which they ride, executed various acts including several "changing of horses in mid-ring," as well as see-saw and catapult acts.

Vandiver Boosts Role Of Guard

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, Mont. (UPI) — Gov. Vandiver urged Tuesday that President Eisenhower and Congress recognize broader "deterrent" and "recovery" defense roles of the National Guard.

Vandiver, in a report to the National Governors Conference, said guard units dispersed through nearly every state are in the best position of any of the military agencies to aid recovery from possible nuclear attack.

ADDS TO DEFENSE

This trained manpower also adds to the deterrent power of a national posture of defense. Vandiver said, but military leaders still consider the guard's function as a first-line reserve for combat.

Vandiver made the report as chairman of the Governors Conference Advisory Committee on

Car-Seizure Warnings Boost Fulton Tax Take $2,900 a Day

Atlanta car owners, faced with the ultimatum of paying long-overdue taxes or seeing their autos impounded, have poured an average of $3,000-$3,500 a day into Fulton County's back-tax kitty for the past three weeks.

Prior to the crackdown on unpaid auto taxes, "we weren't averaging $100 a day in collecting back taxes," Jack L. Camp, chief deputy tax commissioner, said Tuesday.

Camp said two automobiles have been impounded since the county instituted, about a month ago, a get-tough policy on collection of unpaid tax bills covering the years 1955-59.

The owner of one car impounded, he said, "paid up the next day." (Reclaiming an impounded car means payment of all taxes due, plus a $10 tow charge and 50-cents-a-day storage fee.)

Camp said "dozens" of car-owners—confronted by tax deputies with legal authority to seize their autos—"have paid up on the spot."

Other members are Govs. Clyde of Utah, Freeman of Minnesota and Stafford of Vermont.

LACK RECOVERY PLAN

Preparation for recovery from a nuclear attack goes far beyond civil defense, Vandiver said. "We are still lacking, however, a positive plan for recovery."

Vandiver added:

"No force is better prepared to carry out the recovery mission than our national guard."

Vandiver Powerless In Dickerson Case

A spokesman for Gov. Vandiver declared Tuesday there is nothing the governor can do officially about the forced resignation of Miss Maureen Dickerson, director of the Training School for Girls at Adamsville.

Rep. Tom Palmer of Mitchell had asked Vandiver to intervene in the dismissal.

Ed Bridges, the governor's press secretary, tried unsuccessfully Tuesday to reach Vandiver for comment on the matter. (Vandiver is attending the National Governors Conference in Montana.)

But Bridges added that there was nothing the governor could do legally to change Welfare Director Alan Kemper's decision in the matter.

Miss Dickerson has indicated she will not fight the ouster. She declared she could not hold down the position without the cooperation of the Welfare department.

Palmer, carrying on his feud with Kemper, asserted that she has "been doing a good job for 6½ years without the cooperation of the Welfare department."

He said he did not think Kemper was giving the real reason for Miss Dickerson's ouster.

Kemper had accused her of being too lax. He said Palmer was using the issue for political purposes.

Whites Called In Vote Case

Gibson said he had repeatedly tried to apply to register, but the deputy registrars always said they were too busy and told him to come back later.

When they did take his application Jan. 10, 1958, he was asked to read part of the Georgia Constitution he said. He was told he would be called before the Board, and on April 7 went before James Griggs Raines, Dawson banker, attorney and chairman of the registration board.

TOLD OF APPEAL

Gibson said he was given part of the State Constitution to read and was stopped after allegedly mispronouncing "original."

He said he was informed he had failed the test and told he could appeal.

Cross-examining, Bloch found numerous errors in spelling and tense in Gibson's statement to FBI agents. He also showed that Gibson had been released as a teacher by the Terrell County school system.

The government put two more Negroes on the stand.

Eddie G. Lowe, laboratory technician at St. Johns University in New York, said he applied to vote in Terrell County in 1958 and not pass the literacy test.

He said Raines dictated so rapidly a passage for him to write that "it was impossible for me to perform the test as set out."

Lowe, who finished high school in Dawson and completed a year at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, said he did not apply again because he felt it futile.

Bloch asked Lowe about certain meetings with FBI agents and U.S. attorneys which allegedly occurred between April and September 1958. Lowe said he did not remember details about those meetings.

Judge Bootle questioned the relevancy of such "perimeter" subjects.

"Sometimes you can move from the perimeter to the heart of the case," Bloch said.

The Macon attorney said that Lowe had no trouble remembering what had happened when he tried to register to vote. But when questioned about his events which happened after the suit was filed, his recollection was vague, Bloch said.

The suit against the Terrell registrars—Raines; Dixon Oxford, state revenue commissioner; Roscoe Radford; and Mrs. F. Lawson Cook, deputy registrars; and Mr. Cook, since dead—was the first filed under the 1957 act.

Under the 1960 Act, Judge Bootle may appoint a voting referee if the government proves that a pattern of discrimination as to race has existed in the Terrell board actions.

Attorneys for both sides agree the trial probably will continue through Friday at least.

Mrs. Aadland Pleads Innocent

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Florence Aadland, 53, pleaded innocent Tuesday to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of her daughter Beverly, teen-age protegee of the late Errol Flynn.

The platinum-haired divorcee now faces trial before Superior Judge Lewis Drucker on Aug. 3. Beverly, 17, will be a witness.

Beverly has been placed in the custody of the Rev. Leonard Eilers, a former cowboy actor who now operates a San Fernando Valley ranch.

Car Insurance Rise Still Undecided

Georgia Insurance Commissioner Zack Cravey Tuesday night said he "still couldn't say" whether automobile insurance rates will rise in Georgia.

And Cravey reaffirmed his candidacy for reelection as comptroller general of Georgia and indicated he has support from Sen. Talmadge.

"I wouldn't expect him to get out and make speeches for me," Cravey said, "but I vote for him and I think he will vote for me."

Cravey said he "did not have enough time" to go over the transcript of the June 8 automobile insurance rate hearing and "could not say" whether rates would be increased.

During an interview on "Reporter's Notebook" over WAGA-TV, Cravey denied insurance rates in Atlanta are higher than in other areas.

"A package policy selling for $136 in Atlanta sells for $138 in Miami, Fla., for $242 in Boston, Mass., and a little bit double in Brooklyn, N.Y.," he said. "In Birmingham, it's $1.10 less, and in Chattanooga about $15 higher."

Worker Electrocuted

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—A construction worker was accidentally electrocuted Tuesday when the boom on a concrete truck he was operating touched a 7,200-volt overhead wire. He was Nathaniel Fleming, 30, of St. Petersburg.

"I'll concede you this," he said. "We'll give considerable thought before any increase is granted."

Cravey, under questioning, denied accepting campaign funds directly from insurance companies. He admitted he may have received such contributions "possibly indirectly," adding: "Possibly, if there was some agent, I wouldn't say I wouldn't accept his contribution."

"Agents don't set the (insurance) rates," he added.

Cravey, who is also state fire marshal, called for a new, stronger law to ban fireworks in Georgia.

but could not reach Sowell and Ward in time.

Sowell was formally a special agent for Southern Railway and a former Post Office worker.

A veteran of World War I, he attained the rank of lieutenant and had served in France. He was a member of the American Legion and the Oak Grove Methodist Church, where he was a former member of the board of stewards.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. A. C. Sowell, Decatur; a sister, Mrs. Arnold Lederer, Washington, D.C., and two brothers, Harold T. Sowell, Las Cruces, N.M., and A. G. Sowell, Decatur.

"The law should be changed," he said, "terminating the present law 'a farce.'"

"It's no good and everybody knows it," Cravey said. "It's unenforceable. We should outlaw fireworks—period!"

On his candidacy for reelection as comptroller general, Cravey said he announced because "some of my contemporaries, some of the boys, are going around saying I'm not going to run."

Cravey put his age at "43, plus."

Asked if "Miss Mitt," Sen. Talmadge's mother, would back him, Cravey answered, "Frankly, yes. I would expect her support."

"I'm going to campaign enough to get elected," Cravey emphasized.

This German Baroque-style wall clock dates back to the early 1700's when clocks were articles of adornment as well as timepieces. There was no manufacture of clocks, as we know the term, nor were they commonly used. They were, for the most part, hand-made to the order of a king or nobleman—by watchmakers attached to the royal household. "Watchmaker to the king" was indeed a position of considerable importance.

Optometrists Honor Atlanta's Ben Massell

Ben Massell, Atlanta builder, was presented a distinguished service plaque from the American Optometric Assn. Tuesday during its 63rd annual convention at the Biltmore Hotel.

Massell was cited by the optometrists for his work in the establishment of the Ben Massell Optometric Clinic in Atlanta.

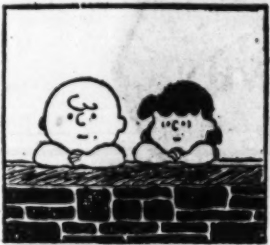

The clinic was established in 1958 under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Optometric Foundation. The clinic has offered free optometric services to those who cannot afford to see a private doctor.

More than 20 Atlanta optometrists donate their professional talents to the clinic and frames are donated by Atlanta optical companies and private donors.

A Douglas optometrist was honored by the International Association of Boards, composed of all boards of examiners. Dr. W. R. Wilson was given a life membership in the association.

An Atlanta girl, 15-year-old Miss Del Pomerance, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elliott R. Pomerance, was named Miss Teen-Age Optometry of 1960. She was elected Tuesday afternoon by ballot of all teen-agers attending the convention.

Dr. William C. Ezell of Spartanburg, S.C., was reelected to his 14th consecutive term as president of the American Optometric Foundation.

Retain 2-Door Requirement For Present, Aldermen Urged

Retention of the two-door requirement for all dwelling units in one or two-story structures until the aldermanic board's zoning committee finds another way to achieve the aims of the existing ordinance was recommended Tuesday.

A six-member group of Atlanta and Fulton county department heads filed the recommendation after an extended discussion.

Col. Wyont Bean, engineer for the joint Atlanta-Fulton County Planning Board, said a plan designed to solve "90 per cent" of the controversy will be offered at the July 5 aldermanic board session.

Action by the committee also followed defeat of a proposal to eliminate immediately the existing two-door ordinance, which exceeds requirements of national building codes.

Col. Malcolm Jones, director of the city's Urban Renewal department, has insisted that the two-door ordinance not only provides additional safety, but forces "builders to leave open space between dwelling units built in congested areas."

In substance the committee recommended (1) that the problem appears to be primarily a planning and zoning matter; (2) that the planning department continue its study of revising the zoning requirements to alleviate overcrowding, high density, and improvement of environment conditions; and (3) that when the planning recommendations are adopted by the mayor and board of aldermen, that consideration be given at that time for eliminating the two-door ordinance.

Mysterious Ice Chunk Fell From Plane, U.S. Reports

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Weather Bureau Tuesday unfroze its report on the mysterious large chunk of ice that fell from the sky near Toccoa last October.

Their finding: the 40-pound chunk was nothing but frozen drinking water from a commercial jet airliner.

But back in October, the Air Force said it had no report of any planes in the area when the ice fell.

The weather bureau has been sitting on the ice report since January, picking a moderately hot June day to release it.

The report said the large ice cube was formed from drinking water that had come from the Eastern Seaboard and that it apparently came from a leak in the drinking water system of a commercial DC8 jet airliner. The government did not name the airline, however.

C. J. LeCroy, on whose northeast Georgia farm the ice fell, said it came from a clear sky, nearly "clobbering" him.

Toccoa High School science teacher Joe Vaughn analyzed some of the ice and reported it was made of pure, soft, untreated and unchlorinated water, such as rain.

Among some of the ideas advanced as to the source of the ice were: the residue from a comet that crossed the earth's orbit, or the nose-cone of a new type Soviet rocket.

City Weighs Ending Firms' Garbage Pickups

By HERMAN HANCOCK

A recommendation that the city discontinue picking up garbage from 6,500 Atlanta business establishments will be considered by the aldermanic board next week.

Under the recommendation of City Sanitary Engineer Stafford Graydon, the businesses would be required to contract with private haulers.

Ald. Jack Summers, chairman of Public Works Committee No. 2, said Tuesday that he will offer the proposal to the aldermanic board July 5. Sanitary taxes would be cut, but would still be sufficient to cover street cleaning and inspections to check the private garbage collections.

Graydon said the city picked up from 6,180 points in Atlanta last year and collected $455,132 in sanitary taxes. He said there would be a normal increase in the businesses served—and that receipts from the existing charge of $24 for each 25 feet of street frontage or fraction thereof would be some higher than last year, if collections are continued.

The division chief estimated that the sanitary tax can be cut one-third of its present figure if the garbage collections are discontinued.

Graydon said most other large cities already have abandoned pickups of garbage from business areas and are concentrating their efforts on residential sectors.

Graydon said a date should be set for quitting, "probably about a year in advance." At present, Graydon estimates, cost of the sanitary pickups exceeds collections substantially—"up to 50 percent more than is collected." He added that many businesses pay more than their fair share of the cost on the front-foot assessment plan, while others get "many times more service than the amount they pay could possibly buy."

He cited chain stores, restaurants and hotels as principal beneficiaries of the present front foot assessment plan.

Several months ago, aldermen passed a resolution directing Graydon and Summers' committee to study the sanitary collection plan with a view of bringing collection costs nearer in line with collections. Under the resolution, Graydon and the committee were instructed to report to the finance committee by July 1.

Missile Sites Designated for 8 Big Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department shook up its air defense plans Tuesday in a move that will deploy nuclear-tipped Nike Hercules anti-aircraft missiles around seven metropolitan areas.

The areas are on the East and West coasts and in the north-central part of the country.

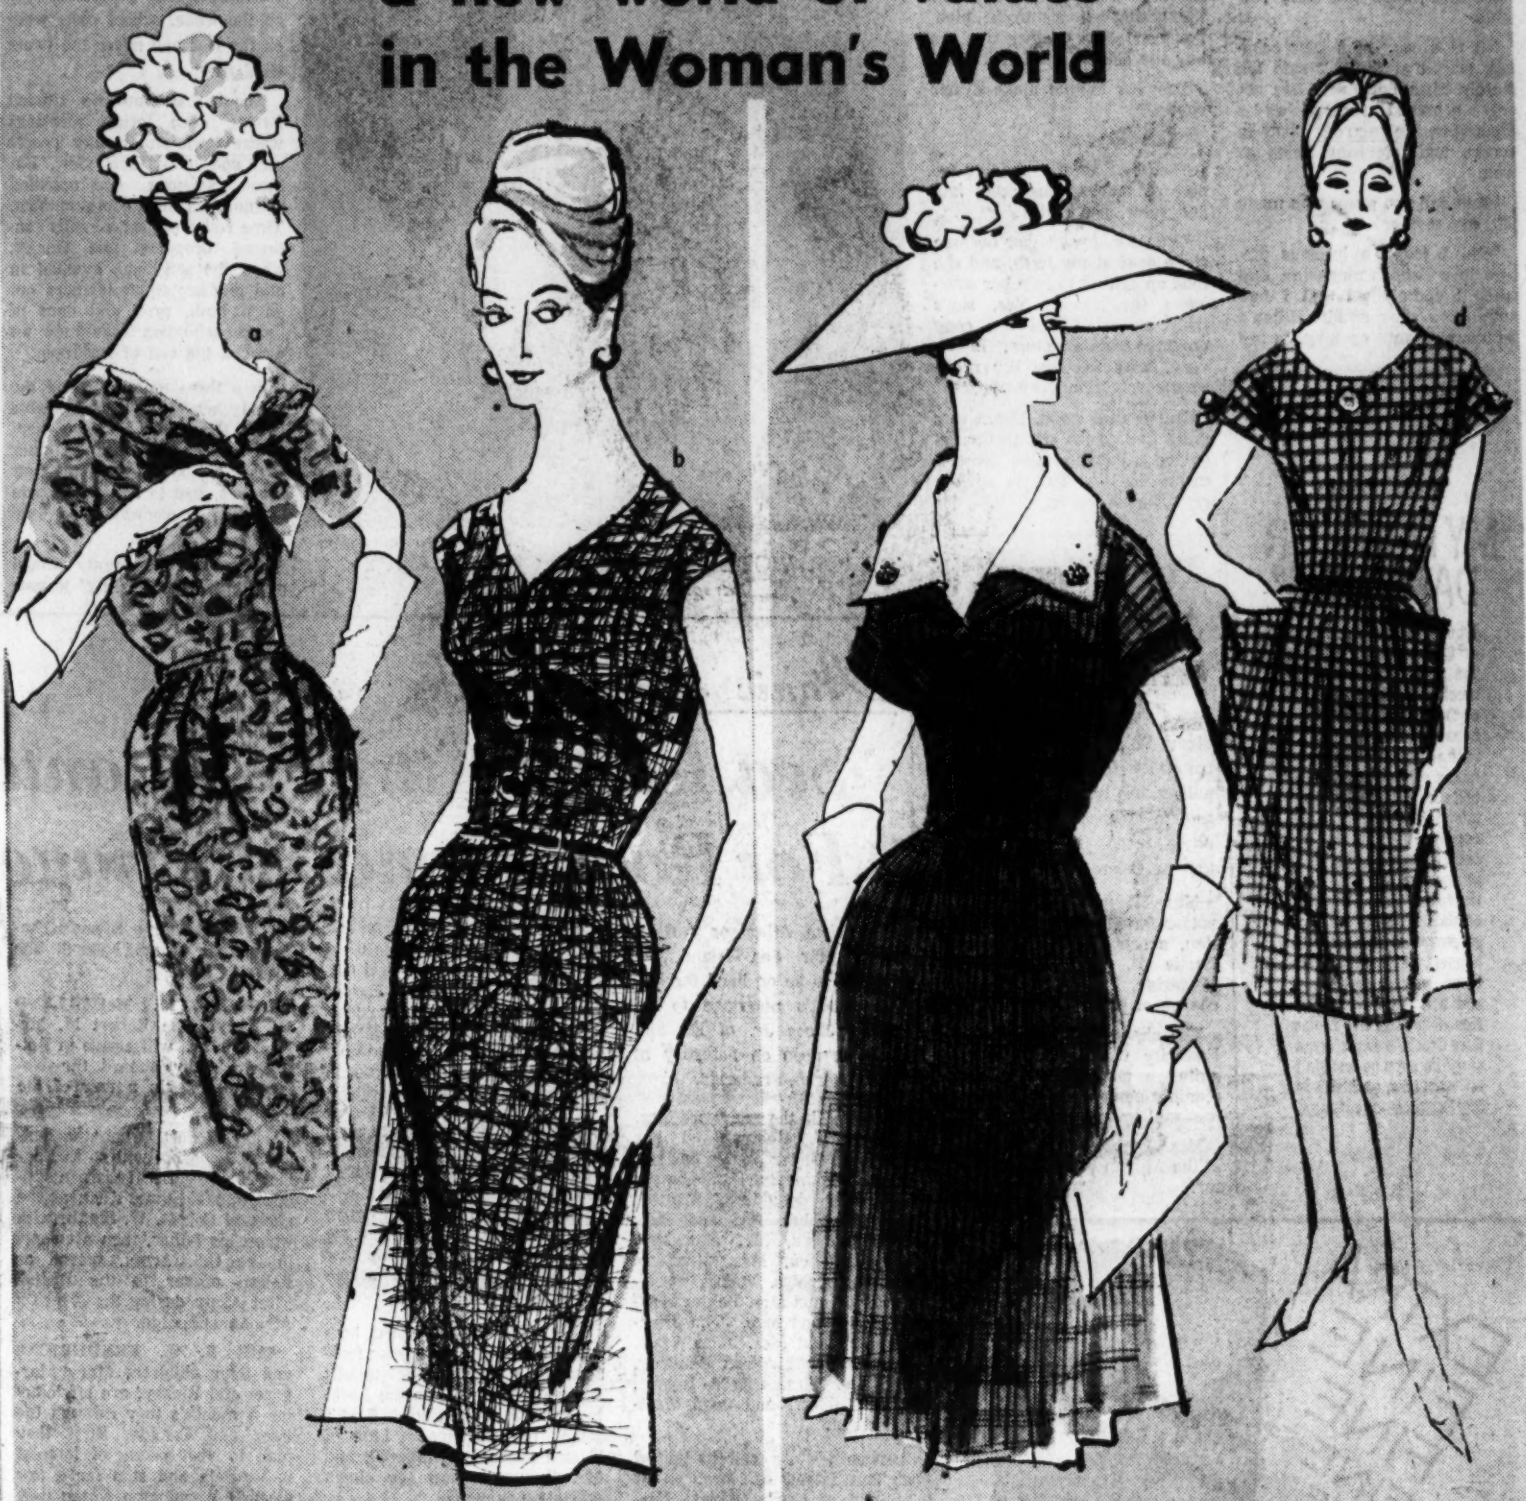

The missiles previously had been earmarked to protect seven Strategic Air Command bases and the city of Hanford, Wash., site of an atomic explosives plant.

Under the new plan, they instead will help defend Washington-Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Detroit, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles against possible bomber attack.

CUT VELVET IN FALL GOLD IS GOOD CARRY-OVER
Marchie Harman Has The In-Between Season Bagged In Duffel Shape

Light Fabrics Set Fall Bag Style

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

Transitional months from July until frost call for a fresh handbag in complete revolt against pale tones of summer.

Just as you feel all washed out in your summer clothes so that catch-all on your arms makes you feel that you've had summer.

That straw hat has been fine with your pastel cottons and print sheers. Your brilliant colors have been smart spots under the summer sun. White, of course, was wonderful when you wore colors that needed cooling off.

But the time has come to shift from the lighter side to the darker side when fall is more of a season to be suggested than acted. So out come your dark cottons with the look of fall and the feel of summer. Checks, plaids, and solids, they are all a feeling in somber shades but can't you imagine the horror of straw, bright colored or white handbags with these!

Even the most unconcerned with fashion wouldn't be caught with such a combination.

Now some gals may be content to think that no one notices you are still carrying last season's handbag. But, if you're one who insists that you be perfectly attuned in your costume right down to your pocketbook, then, your answer lies in softly shaped bags of darkened colors but light fabrics.

FEELS LIKE SUMMER

The knack is to select a bag that fairly screams of fall but feels like summer. The object is to add the look without adding warmth.

Some handsome examples are already showing on the store counter about town and the problem will be not where to find just the one, but which one of the many smart styles to choose.

One that is certain to go with any outfit color because it is so variegated in color is the tapestry bag in carefree swag shape. Fashioned of a frame and handle of neutral beige calfskin, it has a firm yet soft shape and the sides are expandable to carry essentials as well as a few nonessentials.

BLACK SILK, VELVET

Somewhat on the dressier side for your transitional plans is the bag of black silk and cut velvet. The pattern is airy so as not to add any warmth to your arm but fallish enough that it could go on into winter if need be. It is designed in a clever block pattern of alternating two velvet and silk squares.

Gold is destined to be as important an accessory color for fall as it has been for summer. Choose it in a bag of crushable cotton velvet with a rough cut and you've the perfect carry all for any costume color.

SLOPING FRAME

One style features it softly gathered on a sloping frame with fairly long handles that is roomy enough to hold an abundance of everything right down to an overnight nitey.

If you're burning one season behind you, now is the time to be sure you have a season-spanner to take in your hand into the next fall.

For shopping information, call JA. 2-5050, Ext. 394, or send a self-addressed post card to the Women's Department, The Atlanta Constitution.

TOBE SAYS:

Party-Coat Ensemble

Summer Dream Come True

This season's party-coat ensembles look like a midsummer night's dream come true. Every woman knows an ensemble is one of the most useful fashions all year 'round—yes, and all over the world—so why not the party-coat ensemble?

I like the long, or three-quarter filmy party coats of organza or chiffon that seem to float over pretty matching dresses, printed or plain. There are plenty of shadowy and fairy-like twin print ensembles, too, with sheer coats over opaque dresses or vice versa. The shapely belted skirts are especially flattering to most figures, though some dresses are often stalk-like.

Incidentally, some of the prettiest party ensembles I've seen have lace or eyelet coats over matching solid-color fabric dresses.

INSIGHT TO VISION

It's Your Child Who Pays If You Are Misinformed

By BETTY CARROLLTON

An amazing number of modern parents have been lax in guarding the "most precious sense" of their child: His vision.

But experts admit it's not all Mom's fault.

For years, she's been fed well-meaning, but erroneous advice relative to vision, advice

This is the first of a two-part story on the importance of vision in a child's development based on information from the American Optometric Assn.

based on visual theories of the 1800s. It was then that the term "20-20 vision" was coined by a scholar.

He meant "only that a person with 20-20 vision could see at a distance of 20 feet." But even today the term is widely interpreted to mean perfect vision. It's a costly mistake for hundreds of youngsters annually.

But that's only one phase of the laxity that has leveled an unnecessary lifelong penalty against many boys and girls.

Dr. Lois Bing of Cleveland, Ohio, who is in Atlanta as a delegate to the American Optometric Assn.'s 63rd annual conference, has devoted most of her practice to working with youngsters.

TESTED CHILDREN

Over the years, she's tested hundreds of children for defective vision. Through corrective measures she reports many of them have for the first time taken their place among happy, healthy youngsters.

Widow of a prominent Ohio optometrist, Dr. Bing was introduced to children's visual needs through his work.

Mrs. Bing had planned on a career as a teacher. After her husband's death, she returned to college to study for a new career—optometry. She continued her husband's practice, and for the past nine years has been concentrating on the visual problems of children and youth.

"Most people," Dr. Bing declared, "recognized sight as the most important of our senses. But only in recent years have we fully realized how important good vision is to a child's whole development, mentally and physically."

VISION AFFECTS POSTURE

She pointed out that a child's posture, for example, can be molded by his vision.

"When a child doesn't see properly," Dr. Bing explained, "he may tilt his head, or constantly squirm into an unnatural position when playing with toys or looking at his book."

The result of such constant, unnatural posture could be a permanent head tilt, shoulder slump or curved spine.

Dr. Bing, who is chairman of the ADA's committee on visual problems of children and youth, has known dozens of such cases where physical defects have been caused by impaired vision.

"If a child is too nearsighted," Dr. Bing said, "he may have no interest in games with other children. He may shy from sports in school. If a youngster is too farsighted, he may avoid near activity and have trouble with his lessons in school."

If there are no noticeable defects in the exterior of the eye, and a youth can distinguish small letters at 20 feet (20-20 vision), his eyes are diagnosed "healthy," and no eye problem may exist.

VISUAL ABILITIES

"However," Dr. Bing added, "a proper visual examination must also determine the child's visual ABILITIES—whether or not he can focus and point his eyes together as a team; his speed of perception; his accuracy in looking from one object to another. It should determine whether or not he can keep his eyes on a moving object. How he uses his eyes and hands together is also important, in addition to other visual skills that are necessary within his school environment."

The AOA delegate observed that a child must be taught vision, just as he's taught to walk.

"A normal infant," she explained, "is born with sight. But vision is his ability to interpret what he sees. It is a learning process."

During pre-school years, a child's vision is constantly developing. It will be affected by his hereditary background, his environment, health and emotions.

GOOD SCHOOL VISION

Dr. Bing called attention to the following "elements of good school vision" as determined by an official national study:

1. NEAR-ACTUITY, the ability to focus and see clearly at a distance of 12-15 inches, to see properly with each eye separately and both eyes together. "This is the distance at which one reads, and at which a child engages in more than 80 per cent of all school activities." It is even more important than (2) DISTANT ACTUITY, the ability to see clearly at a distance of 20 feet, necessary for reading what is written on the blackboard and for normal living both indoors and outdoors.

However, the report noted that in most routine visual examinations of school children, near-actuity is completely overlooked.

3. BINOCULAR COORDINATION, ability to make the two eyes work together as a team. A child with crossed eyes has coordination trouble. He turns one eye out of the way so it will not interfere with the other. Frequently such a student achieves superior performance on tasks requiring only monocular vision.

4. FORM AND SPAN OF VISION: A child's ability to see and be able to reproduce form is a necessity to reading. His span of vision is his ability to see and understand groups of letters and words rather than seeing them individually. A wide field of vision is the ability to see over a large area while focusing on a small spot.

5. OCULAR MOTILITY: The ability to follow a moving object, to change both fixation and focus from one point to another, easily and accurately, keeping it clear and single.

"Naturally," Dr. Bing said, "these findings are useless if they are not applied to the nation's school children. Parents and teachers must become 'vision conscious.'"

"A child's vision should never be taken for granted."

Inflation Even Hits Good Fairy

DEAR GEORGE:

The good fairy leaves a dime under the child's pillow in exchange for a tooth. Now that you've raised the ante to a quarter, this parent of three kids is going to bill you for the difference: a mere $11.35 per year. P. S.—Henceforth my kids are forbidden to read Das Capital and your column.

GOOD FAIRY.

DEAR GOOD FAIRY: Based on the cost of living index as compared to when you and I were young, Good Fairy, a shiny new dime now costs a shiny new quarter. This is one reason I would have to pay off my $11.35 due bill in old teeth. They already got my shirt.

DEAR GEORGE:

Do you think a beauty contest winner from a small town would have a chance in Hollywood?

DEAR UNDECIDED: A chance to what? Beauty contest winner I know went to California and became very wealthy. Actually, it wasn't right in Hollywood but over in Long Beach where she married a wholesale hardware tycoon. Beauty Arms By Polishing Family's Shoes

FLORENCE (WNS)—"It's the muscles in your arms that will make you attractive to men this summer," announced beauty expert Eleanora Lippo. That's because of the new sleeveless dresses.

"Don't be afraid to put on the boxing gloves," the glamorous redhead advises her social clientele. "Volley ball and some good hard housework will put you in beauty trim."

Learn to polish the family's shoes with a heavy brush and a full arm motion, she suggested. Then toss horseshoes for 30 minutes or jump into the swimming pool and practice the back stroke.

"Be sure to work as hard with the left arm as you do with the right," warned Signorina Lippo. "The two arms must match or you'll look like a Picasso painting."

SEAMS TO ME

By Patricia Scott

How many times have you made a dress, worn it once or twice and then had a sleeve split? Is the style to blame? Could it be that your arm is too large? Some women have what is called an athletic arm (large muscle) which will throw the sleeve off completely even though the rest of the pattern fits perfectly.

There is more than one way of altering a pattern to make the arm fit properly, but I'll give you the method used for enlarging it any amount necessary without throwing off the bodice and armhole.

1. On a large sheet of paper, trace the outline of the entire sleeve. Slash pattern, starting at center of top, in a straight line to lower seam line (sleeve illustration).

2. Pin or tape lower edge of pattern to lower edge of traced outline.

3. About one inch below underarm, spread slashed pattern pieces the necessary amount and fasten to paper.

4. Bring top edges of slashed pieces together and fasten to paper.

5. In order to flatten pattern, form darts from slash to sides of sleeve cap and fasten to paper, as shown.

6. To cut out sleeve, use the original traced line for the sleeve top to where it meets the new line of the altered pattern.

7. On bodice front and back patterns, add to side seams at underarm one-half the amount added to sleeve width, and taper to just above waistline (bodice illustrations).

If your arm is large only at the upper part and needs one inch or less to be added, you can use this method. Take a fold in the cap of the sleeve pattern, just above the notches, about a half-inch deep. Place on a sheet of paper and form new cap line. When cutting sleeve, cut on this new line.

This last method is not recommended if the entire arm is large. The first method should be used, altering both sleeve and bodice.

Miss Scott is happy to help SEAMS TO ME readers with their sewing problems, and with questions on wardrobe and fashions. However, because so many are seeking her assistance, Miss Scott asks readers to please limit their letters to one question. Send your question to Patricia Scott in care of The Atlanta Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

P-W for Pin-Worms
R-W for Round-Worms

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE 1 OUT OF 3 DOES!
Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms or Round Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredients go right to work—kill Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms or Round Worms, ask your druggist for Jayne's P-W or R-W... the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son and their successors, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

Billy Graham

Wide Reading of Scripture Shows Wish to Know God

QUESTION: Do you actually think there are many people who read the Bible nowadays? Do you think there are more Bible readers now than in the times of John Wesley and George Whitefield?—C. E.

ANSWER: There must be many more people who read the Bible than in the times of Wesley and Whitefield. But you must remember also that there are many more people and many more Bibles these days. The present-day popularity of the Bible is certainly an indication of the hunger of the human heart to know God. It also indicates to us that in spite of all that has been said against the Bible in the past, men and women recognize it as having the voice of authority. The Bible alone has in it the Word of Life. That is why we urge people to read it and to consider it prayerfully that they might find the way. It is God's inspired message to the human race. Job said it was more necessary than his daily food. David said it was a light unto his path and a lamp unto his feet.

I am convinced if the leaders of our government read it more, they would find the wisdom and inspiration to approach our national problems in a new dimension. In its pages lie the knowledge of the "secrets of life."

Congo Seeks Belgium Post

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP)—Parliamentary sources report the new Congo republic hopes to have its permanent minister in Brussels sit in on Belgian Cabinet meetings on Congo affairs.

As I See It Como's Replacement Gets More Viewers

By PAUL JONES

Perry Como, now in the throes of reorganizing his Wednesday night show, can take little comfort in these statistics just released by one of the rating services:

Tate, a Western series which is filling 30 minutes of the Como hour during the summer, has topped I've got a Secret.

Paul Jones

Como's replacement has accomplished something that Mr. C. was able to do only infrequently during the past season.

It would be folly to assume that Tate is a more substantial package of entertainment than was the Perry Como program. Possibly some of its appeal lies in the fact that it is new and, at this point in the season, viewers are eager to feast their eyes upon anything which hasn't been exhibited before.

But it is significant, nonetheless, that while Como was cock of the walk on his old Saturday night spot he has not been able to subdue the silly game show which is headed by the irrepresible Garry Moore on Wednesday nights.

Tate is not an ordinary Western. The hero of the piece, a one-armed gunfighter impersonated by David McLean, uses more ammunition in a 30-minute show than all other hooey-heroes in television. It is unquestionably the most violent sage brush saga I've seen. The soundtrack sounds like it was recorded in a shooting-gallery with some Peter Gunn jazz thrown in for good measure.

In the episode being offered tonight (Ch. 2 at 9:30 p.m.) Tate starts out by killing a girl trying to ambush him.

Throughout the play he attempts to explain that he didn't mean to shoot to kill but eventually he rides off into a typical Western sunset, accompanied by a hoodlum who is guilty of a Civil War atrocity.

The other half of the Como hour, the 9 to 9:30 p.m. segment, is filled by a show entitled Happy. It's typical situation comedy fluff.

THE TEEN-AGE ELEMENT got long-deserved recognition in prime time television the other night and while the show—Coke Time—lacked some of the zest of a mid-season spectacular I thought it had some very bright moments.

This is the first time I recall seeing a group of teen stars sing into a live microphone and take part in major TV production with choreography, orchestrations and set pieces worked out especially for them.

Of course we have the Dick Clark show on Saturday night, but then the young stars have to pantomime and lip-sing their numbers, which are taken from a tape recording. Seldom have newcomers had an opportunity to show what they can do.

I was especially impressed by Annette Funicello's lively and imaginative dance number, "Madison Time," a youthful, swinging bit of choreography. Miss Funicello should give up singing and stick to dancing, a skill she acquired while one of the Mousketeers. Another lively number was developed around the transistor radio fad, which is the newest thing with the teens.

Anita Bryant, a very pretty young singer, has great potential. She obviously has a good theatrical background because she seemed more "at home" than any of the others, except for Pat Boone, who hosted the show, and Bobby Darin, already a veteran of the night club circuit.

PAUL ANKA, a young song writer, who has done amazingly well singing some of his own tunes; Bob Denver, the beatnik of the Doble Gillis show; Edd Byrnes of 77 Sunset Strip and Frankie Avalon also were featured in the special.

PAT MOLITIERI, of Hollywood, is embarking on a new career. Now a columnist for Teen Magazine, Pat says she has made up her mind to become an actress.

"Right now I've started singing lessons, which I really enjoy," Pat says in a letter, the first she's written since she left American Bandstand last year. "I've been doing different shows with the Teen Show and I hope soon to get started in the movies. This is what I'm truly hoping for. If it is God's will I'll have my dream come true."

Pat is the first teen-ager to parlay her appearance on the

SECRET-BEARER
Victor Borge

Bandstand show into real fame. She has become a writer, a model, and after attending a professional school in Hollywood, apparently is ready to embark on a career as an actress.

Candidates Sign For Korea Vote

SEOUL (UPI)—Candidates began registering with election committees throughout the Republic of Korea Tuesday for the first parliamentary elections to be held July 29 under a new constitution.

The registration is expected to be completed by July 2. Political observers predicted the biggest slate in the republic's history.

Fee Hassle Stalls Surgery

MINOT, N.D. (UPI)—Gary Lindberg, 16, Grand Forks, N.D., lay in a hospital bed with a bullet wound in the head Tuesday while authorities debated who should operate on him.

Lindberg was shot when police fired a hail of bullets into a stolen car which he tried to crash through a police road block. He was reported in good condition Tuesday.

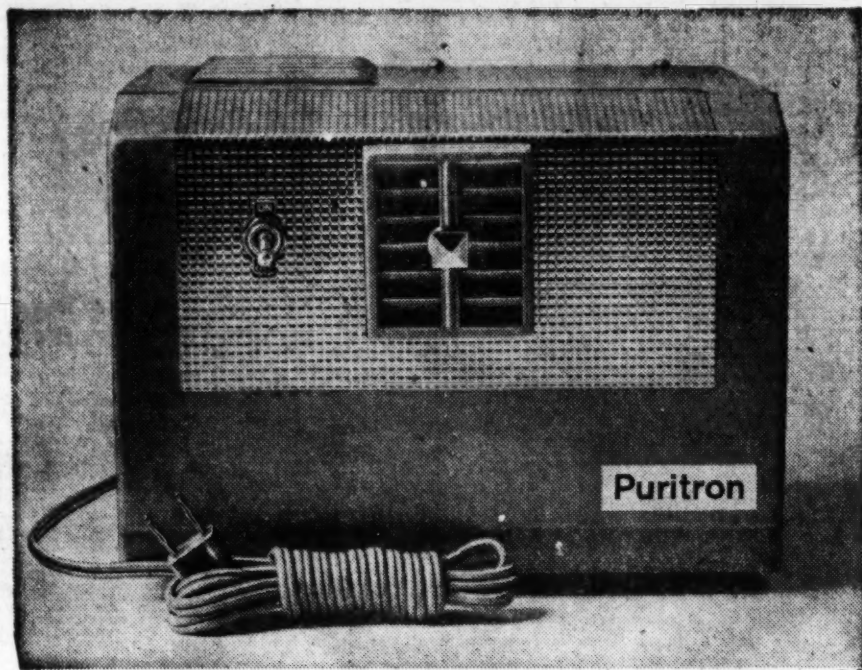

The city has refused to assume the expense of an operation, a physician said, and the county welfare board has declined to act until the case has gone through "regular channels."

The physician, who declined use of his name, refused Monday night to operate on Lindberg immediately at his own expense. He said he as an individual should not be required to be financially liable for treating the boy when no emergency exists. The doctor said the youth was in good enough condition that it would do no harm to wait.

The Brawl at Salt Lake

Carmen Basilio, a charter member in boxing's Red Badge of Courage Club, gets another crack at the NBA middleweight crown and the only guy ever to knock him out when he squares off against Gene Fullmer Wednesday night in Salt Lake City.

Basilio was within one round of his 75th straight bout without being kayoed when Fullmer claimed the crown in the 14th stanza last August in San Francisco. On that particular evening, the bullish Fullmer appeared in command most of the way.

Outlar

He's an 8-5 choice to retain the title in the rematch which will be televised by ABC. Local members of the Living Room AC may see it on WLW-TV.

However, you'll have to wing out to Salt Lake to watch Pete Rademacher, the Columbus, Ga., resident, in a ten-round go with Lamar Clark. Rademacher is making his first appearance since returning from Europe where he made a big hit at army camps—as a speaker.

Basilio, who grew onions for a living before he started raising lumps, looked as though he were ready to return to farming in his last outing. He hasn't been to post since the fracas with Fullmer, but witnesses testify that the challenger has appeared sharp in workouts at Ogden.

Fullmer, making his third defense of the middleweight belt, wasn't exactly sensational in his last outing. He was forced to settle for a draw in a head-butting contest with Joey Giardello several weeks ago at Bozeman, Mont.

Observing Fullmer in previous TV scraps, it appeared that his noggin is perhaps more effective than his right hand. The man can butt with the best. He is also a tough foe to chop down.

—A Challenger Who Won't Surrender

Fullmer has age and the home court going for him. The 28-year-old champion has never lost a bout in his home state of Utah. Basilio, now 33, is past his prime and may be completely beyond the hill.

But you can't discount courage and ring savvy in the boxing business, and Basilio is endowed with a bountiful supply of both. He is one of the gamiest guys ever to lace on a pair of gloves. Fullmer will have to beat him, for Basilio has never surrendered. And he's learned a lot of tricks in rolling up a 54-14-7 record.

The Fullmer record is impressive. He has won 51 bouts, lost four and finished on even terms with Giardello.

On the basis of the fight in Frisco last August, Fullmer should be an odds-on choice in this one. But oddsmakers still have a lot of respect for Basilio. Despite a disadvantage in age, weight and location of the bout, many experts rate Basilio a stickout chance of reclaiming the title.

Basilio has remained secretive about his plans. But after his previous experience with the bullish Fullmer, Carmen is apt to go for an early knockout. He no longer has the stamina to slug it out with a foe like the champion.

Basilio has always figured a good offense is the best defense, and I think he'll go for the long ball from the opening bell. Butting heads with Fullmer for 15 rounds simply isn't advisable.

—But a Solid Vote for the Utah Entry

If either fighter goes down for the count, it will mark only the second time in his career. Sugar Ray Robinson belted Fullmer out in the fifth in 1957 to recapture the middleweight belt. Robinson had lost the title to Fullmer via a 15-round decision four months previously.

Perhaps the winner of tonight's go will be fortunate enough to get a shot at Paul Pender, who is middleweight champion in all but 48 states. Pender resembled a two-state champion in his recent waltz with Robinson in Boston.

In the preliminary match Rademacher, who started at the top against Floyd Patterson, is a distinct underdog against Clark. A stablemate of Fullmer, Clark is a Utah boy who unreeling an impressive string of knockouts against unimpressive opponents. He was advertised by Manager Marv Jensen as the forthcoming heavyweight champion, but he has yet to put away a top-drawer foe. If memory serves, Clark has lost only one match.

Rademacher, a personable fellow who adopted Columbus as his home base, is attempting to gain a degree of prestige. The former Olympic champ got a late start in pro ranks, but quickly attracted national attention by meeting Patterson in his debut. He was written off as a contender by Zora Folley and since has managed to lose to Brian London.

The Utah entry of Fullmer and Clark should win by several lengths tonight in Salt Lake.

Roberto Clemente's single after walks to Bob Skinner and Dick Stuart earned the Pirates the deadlock. The Pirates then loaded the bases but Jack Sanford got the next three batters.

Pinch-hitter Hal Smith struck out with the bases loaded as the time ran out.

The Giants had moved out in front 7-6 in the seventh inning on a run-scoring single by Willie Mays.

The deadlock left the Pirates 2½ games ahead of the surging Milwaukee Braves, who beat Chicago 5-3, and six ahead of the Giants.

The game was delayed three times by rain.

Rocky Nelson drove in four Pittsburgh runs with a three-run homer and a double. His homer in the first cut the Giants' lead to 4-3 and his double in the fifth knotted the score at 6-6.

The Giants jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the first inning. Three singles and triples by Felipe Alou and Andre Rodgers sent starter Harvey Haddix to the showers.

BILL FOR UNLIMITED DRAFT STRIKES OUT IN SENATE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Tuesday night killed a bill to place professional sports under antitrust laws and open major league baseball rosters to an unrestricted draft.

The legislators sent the hotly disputed bill back to the Senate Judiciary Committee after adopting an amendment which the measure's backers contended would gut it.

"The hour is late, the deed is done," Sen. John A. Carroll (D-Colo.), one of the bill's main backers, told the Senate in moving to have it sent back to committee. It was sent back on a 73-12 vote.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), would have given professional baseball the same limited exemptions from the antitrust laws as the bill would have provided for pro football, hockey and basketball. It was adopted by a 45-41 roll call vote.

The action—somewhat of a surprise—came after Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) had urged passage of the bill to "give major league baseball back to the nation."

"Major league owners have a monopoly control of baseball players from which they ought to be relieved," O'Mahoney said.

A main motivating force behind the bill, however, was a charge by the new Continental League that organized baseball has been employing monopoly tactics to block its efforts to get started as baseball's third major league.

Wiley, whose state is home to the Milwaukee Braves, led the fight against the measure. He contended the bill as drafted by the committee would disrupt baseball, and do nothing to help the Continental.

Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.), whose state is host to the Detroit Tigers, backed Wiley. He contended Congress would be getting far off base in trying to legislate for the sports world.

Fullmer Battles Basilio Tonight

Champ Favored to Keep Title In Big Bout on National TV

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Challenger Carmen Basilio slipped quietly into town Tuesday promising "a different fight" with champion Gene Fullmer Wednesday night in their middleweight title bout.

But the middleweight king remained a solid favorite to retain the title in their 15-round clash.

The match goes on at Derks Field with a hoped-for turnout of 13,000 or more. It will be screened nationally on TV via ABC, starting at 9 p.m., EST, with Utah and parts of Wyoming blacked out.

Betting varied from 7 and 8-5 here to 3½-1 in New York that Fullmer will score a repeat win over the 33-year-old former titleholder from Chittenango, N.Y.

The 28-year-old Fullmer, from nearby West Jordan, Utah, whipped Basilio for the NBA version of the middleweight crown last August in San Francisco, handing Basilio the first knockout in his career.

It took Fullmer 14 rounds to stop the old brawler.

Youth and the psychological support of a home-state rooting section are angles that favor Fullmer. Added to this is the point that he beat Carmen once and, in Gene's way of thinking, he should do it again.

Basilio has been working out in secret at Ogden, 40 miles north of Salt Lake City. Only a privileged few have seen him.

But some of these witnesses have been more than impressed with the determination of Basilio to recapture the championship. Basilio has not fought since the Fullmer fight but his backers discount this as a disadvantage to him.

Basilio reportedly is weighing around 155, a pound less than he scaled in the first Fullmer match. Fullmer weighed 159½ for that one and figures to do about the same at weighin time.

Neither is expected to have any trouble making the 160-pound limit.

Big Try in Losing Cause

PIRATES TO STRIKE?

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bob Friend, player representative for the Pittsburgh Pirates, said Tuesday night his teammates will not take the field for the second game of the July 10 double-header at Philadelphia.

The second game of the twin-bill is to make up for a rained-out game earlier in the season. Friend said it is against the players' agreement to play a double-header following a night game.

Little Rocks Chip Cracker Lead, 5-4

Reynolds HR The Clincher

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Constitution Sports Writer

LITTLE ROCK—The Crackers road show continued to be as big a flop as their home show is a success, and Little Rock sliced another game off their Southern Assn. lead with a 5-4 cut Tuesday night.

Boasting glittering 29-12 won-lost credentials at Ponce de Leon Park, the Crackers floundered to their 21st defeat in 36 outings on foreign fields.

A Ladies Night crowd of 4,243 belloyed approval as the second-place Travelers unloaded on starter Scott Breeden for four runs in the opening inning.

That quick rally, featuring a pair of two-run doubles by Manager Fred Hatfield and Jay Cooke, proved to be the knockout blow as the Crackers demonstrated their aversion to winning one-run road games.

(This was their eighth defeat in 11 one-run margin battles abroad.)

A solo home run by ex-Cracker Billy Reynolds in the fifth inning, his 13th of the season and the only Trav tally off Ed Striebeck and Rick Cronk in the last seven innings, evolved into the victory run.

But the savage salvo that shot Breeden to his fourth defeat against as many victories was the killing one that allowed Hatfield's hotshots to crawl to within 1½ games of the Southern Assn. league.

The Crackers were a little more ready for Charlie Ready than they were when he turned them back on eight hits in Atlanta six days ago.

A 5-8 failure at New Orleans last season, he buffaloesd them enough to post his 10th victory with the four-pitch aid of Bob Leopold in the ninth inning.

Although jumped for three runs in the second inning, curve-balling Ready snuffed out the Crackers on seven hits for eight innings.

But a leadoff double by Doug Camilli and a two-out single by

That's when a harried Hatfield belloyed to the bullpen for Leopold, and the massive southpaw flame-thrower came on and blazed three strikes past dangerous Tim Harkness to end the struggle.

Breeden was no mystery from the start, Al Benza leading off with a single and being chopped

Aaron Box Joins Pro Swing, Signs With Edmonton Team

Eight Bulldogs In Pro Ranks

Aaron Box signed with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union Tuesday and became the third University of Georgia end to cast his lot with the professionals.

Of the top four Bulldog flankmen only Jimmy Vickers remains outside the pro ranks, and he chose to return to Ag Hill as freshman end coach.

Gordon Kelley signed with the San Francisco 49ers and Bill

Herron with the Washington Redskins.

Box was signed upon recommendation of Georgia defensive backfield coach Paul Davis, who once served in a like capacity for the Eskimos. The 6-1, 195-pound Live Oak, Fla., end will be coached at Edmonton by Dan Edwards, another graduate of the Georgia school of hard knocks.

Bulldog flank coach John Gregory believes Box has a good chance of making good in the Canadian League.

"Aaron is a good offensive end, with good hands, and a quick blocker," Gregory said Tuesday. "He has adequate speed. Under their two-platoon system, and with Jackie Parker (ex-Miss, State quarterback) passing, Aaron should see a lot of action."

No less than eight Bulldogs off of Wally Butts' Southeastern Conference and Orange Bowl championship squad have signed pro contracts.

In addition to the three named, they are quarterback Charley Britt (L.A. Rams), tackle Larry Lancaster (Oakland), guard Billy Roland (Washington), guard Carter Ramsey (Boston Patriots) and halfback Bobby Towns (St. Louis Cardinals).—THOMY

Now for the Colts

Morris Signs Pact, Eyes 'Those Colts'

Ex-Tech Star in Bears' Fold; Henry Hair Joins Chargers

By AL THOMY

Larry Morris, an all-American center at Georgia Tech in 1953, Tuesday signed his 1960 contract with the Chicago Bears and looked forward to "another crack at those Baltimore Colts."

At the same time it was learned that Henry Hair, all-SEC end at Tech in 1954, is coming out of a two-year retirement to join the Los Angeles Chargers of the new American Football League.

Hair is due to report to the Chargers on Wednesday.

The iron-ribbed Morris, who holds the Tech individual tackling records with 24 against Georgia in '54 and 114 for the season in '52, said his decision was motivated by a burning desire to beat the ferocious Colts and share in championship payoff.

"They beat us once and we beat them once last year," said

Larry. "This year we are going to beat them twice. Our record of 8-4 last season is just a shade lower than their 9-3."

"We lost a couple of games in the last minute to Green Bay and San Francisco that hurt us."

Morris showed last year that he is fully recovered from a 1958 knee operation.

The Los Angeles Rams, with whom he played four years, traded him to the Washington Redskins. Refusing to report to the Redskins, Morris changed his mind when traded to the Bears. He went on to have an outstanding season.

"George Halas (owner-coach) of the Bears is an awfully good fellow," said Morris. "I think a lot of him and the Bear organization."

"That's one reason I decided to play again this year . . . that and the chance to get another shot at the Colts and that championship pot."

IRISH CONVINCED PALMER CAN SWEEP BRITISH OPEN

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland (AP)—If you want to get a bet against Arnold Palmer's winning the British Open Golf Championship starting at St. Andrews next week you'll have to hunt for a taker.

The U.S. Open and Masters' champion, on his performance as Sam Snead's partner in the Canada Cup matches here, now stands at the top of the odds board in the golfing world.

The Irish, Scots, English and Welsh, who not only know the game but love to bet on it, have concluded that the Latrobe, Pa., professional is the man to beat in a field of 410 for the century British Open.

They made their own form sheet, not on Palmer's great year in the United States, but on their examination of his game on the 7,093-yard Portmarnock links beside the Irish Sea.

Snead they took for granted, and Sammy's 281 was still three shots better than Palmer's 284. Together the Americans' 565 spreadeagled the field.

But Palmer was under the microscope, not Snead, for he's the man coming up and at 48 the slammer now has to choose his spots to retain his prestige. He is passing up the Open.

What the highly knowledgeable golf crowd here opined in the wake of the Canada Cup play is that while Palmer lacks Snead's consummate grace and easy style, he more than makes up for it somewhere inside him.

The golfwise Irish were talking about Palmer's spirit, not his golf. They liked the man's talent for rising to an occasion, getting rid of the putting jeebies and meeting the challenge. That, to the Irish, is the breath of life.

So they calculate that such a man can whip St. Andrews and if he's not putting one day, he'll be putting the next.

Palmer wants this British title so much he almost sniffs with eagerness when he talks about it.

Way back in Arnold's head is a mighty big dream. Should he capture the British Open, he is then going after the U.S. PGA title and in that event, he would achieve the greatest feat in the history of the game.

It would be a modern Grand Slam — the Masters, the U.S. and British Opens and the U.S. PGA. It would be equivalent to Bobby Jones' 1930 performance when he won both British Amateur and Open and American Amateur and Open championships.

Bues Option Umbricht

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday optioned pitchers Bennie Daniels and Jim Umbricht to their Columbus, Ohio, farm club in the International League.

At the same time, the Pirates recalled from Columbus right-handed pitchers Tom Cheney and Earl Francis. They will report to the Pirates as soon as possible. Cheney, with a 4-8 record, was leading the International League in strikeouts with 114. Francis posted a 5-4 mark.

Daniels appeared in 10 games with the Pirates this season, compiling a 1-3 record. Umbricht worked 15 games, starting three of them. He had a 1-2 record.

SECRETS OF WINNING GOLF

A 'Fair Advantage' Helps Your Chances

NO. 10 OF A SERIES

The important thing to do for increasing your chances of winning a golf match is to strive for a "fair advantage."

A fair advantage might be defined as a means or method of play within the framework of good sportsmanship that works in your favor. Now that you are alerted to gaining a fair advantage you must look for them and be continuously ready to capitalize on each.

Added recommendations are:

Don't make unusual bets which do not give you a "fair advantage."

Always try to steer unusual bets in the direction of having the other player do the work. For example:

Don't bet you can make a certain hole in, say four. Bet your opponent that he can't make it in four. Place the burden of proof on the opponent.

Most of us have played golf matches where one or more of the players offered putts (and expected to be given putts and other concessions in return) that were within questionable or difficult area.

This is an old favorite of the erratic putter. Granting putts and similar "gifts" are gifts and should spell danger to you. Naturally, in formal matches all putts must be holed out but in casual play "gifts" are almost the rule.

He's Leading You On

Gifts in golf are not limited to the putting green. Very often a player will tell you to take your ball away from a root or obstacle without penalty.

Usually he will suggest this when there is little fear of your winning the hole.

The generous golfer is simply laying ground work. When he gets in difficulty or a questionable position you will be expected to meet or go beyond what he has done in terms of generosity.

By accepting these gratuities you weaken your own confidence. The next time you are faced with a similar shot, your opponent may not be so generous and you will question whether you can actually execute it.

They'll Miss Putts

He may not be certain how he will react under the strain of the conditions for sinking putts according to the rules, and consequently may suffer weakened confidence.

A good way to insure that everyone abides by the rules, is to say on the first tee, "Does everyone agree to hole out all putts?"

You will be surprised at the short putts your opponents will miss within 2-3 feet of the cup when they must "putt out." Those free and easy gratuities now become mountains of anxiety, giving you a fair advantage.

Hard, Hantze Fall In Singles Matches

Last Americans Bite Dust As U.S. Prestige Plummet

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—American tennis prestige plummeted to an all-time low Tuesday when the last two U.S. singles representatives, Darlene Hard and Karen Hantze, were knocked out of the Wimbledon championships.

First the 17-year-old Miss Hantze, of San Diego, Calif., went down fighting before the booming shots of Britain's 6-foot Christine Truman, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Then Miss Hard of Montebello, Calif., twice a finalist and Uncle Sam's main hope of regaining the women's dominance held so long, bowed in a staggering upset to pretty Sandra Reynolds of South Africa, 6-1, 2-6, 6-1.

Shortly before this double debacle, Earl Buchholz Jr., the St. Louis youngster who collapsed with cramps Monday while leading top-seeded Neale Fraser, announced he was in no condition to continue the tournament.

So he and his fellow 19-year-old Charles (Chuck) McKinley, were forced to default in doubles to Jaime Couder and Manuel Santana of Spain — another blow to U. S. hopes.

This left the United States with a makeshift team of Barry MacKay and Ron Holmberg in the doubles. They were forced to the fullest to beat a scrappy Mexican tandem, Francisco Contreras and Mario Llamas, in a third-round match, 4-6, 8-6, 10-8, 4-6, 6-3.

It's the worst American showing ever in this oldest of tennis championships, dating back to 1877.

So it remained for a patch-work aggregation of players from all corners of the world to seize the spotlight which once was monopolized by the Yanks and Australians.

The Phlegmatic Indian, Ram-anathan Krishnan, cut down fourth-seeded Luis Ayala of Chile, 7-5, 10-8, 6-2 to qualify for a semifinal spot opposite Fraser.

Rod Laver, the flashy Australian left-hander, whipped Team-mate Roy Emerson 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 6-5 and entered the semifinals opposite Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy, conqueror of MacKay.

Braves Trim Cubs Behind Spahn, 5-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Wes Covington's leadoff homer in the sixth inning plus an insurance run in the eighth carried Milwaukee to a 5-3 victory over Chicago Tuesday in the season's first Wrigley Field meeting between the two teams.

Weather wiped out all three games of Milwaukee's first Chicago visit in May, blanking four different attempts to play any one of the games. Weather also threatened Tuesday's game as play was delayed for one full hour when Milwaukee was batting in the fourth.

Veteran Warren Spahn won for his sixth triumph among 10 decisions as well as his first over the Cubs this year.

Glen Hobbie, going the distance and allowing only six hits, drew his 10th loss. He has won six.

Spahn surrendered eight hits, only three during the final seven innings.

Before the storm, the rivals exchanged three run scoring sprees. Four hits, all singles, plus an intentional walk accounted for Chicago's three in the second. After Earl Averill's safety brought home the first run, Richie Ashburn's second single drove in the next two.

Spahn singled to ignite Milwaukee's tying rally in the third. Billy

Herrera Hits Again As Dodgers Fall, 2-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie Pancho Herrera clouted his ninth home run to extend his batting streak to 20 consecutive games as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 Tuesday night behind freshman Dallas Green's three-hit pitching.

Green, a former University of Delaware basketball star who came to the Phillies from Buffalo with an unfashionable 3-4 record, made his first National League triumph a masterpiece. He yielded a single to Don Demeter in the third, a double to Charlie Neal in the fourth, and a single off his glove by Norm Larker in the ninth.

2 Railroads Vying For Control of B&O

N.Y. Central, Chesapeake Offer to Buy Common Stock

By WILLIAM FERRIS

NEW YORK (AP)—Two giant railroads squared off Tuesday in a fight for control of a third road, the famous Baltimore & Ohio.

Directors of the New York Central offered to buy common stock held by the B&O shareholders. The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway also has made an offer for this stock.

Action by the Central followed unsuccessful efforts to get C&O directors to agree on a mutual plan for buying B&O stock.

The two offers are part of a developing merger pattern in the East. Railroad leaders believe there eventually will be only two big systems in the East.

$43 A SHARE

The New York Central offer to B&O stockholders includes Central stock and cash. Based on current market quotations it is worth about $43 a share.

The C&O offer of stock only, has a market value of about $35 a share. However, the C&O has a much better dividend record than the Central.

Alfred Perlman, president of the Central, said that "the Central will continue to be receptive to any appropriate agreement" for a joint acquisition of the B&O by the Central and the C&O.

Walter Tuohy, C&O president, answered that if the C&O proposal to the B&O does not go through "there is a risk that the merger movement could be set back a decade in the East to the detriment of the whole industry."

A B&O spokesman had no comment "since the board of directors has had no opportunity to consider the (Central) offer being made to shareholders."

The B&O operates 5,900 miles of track into almost every important manufacturing, coal mining and steel center in the territory between New York, Washington, St. Louis and Chicago.

Assets total $1,262,789,000. It was chartered in 1827 and is the oldest common carrier railroad in the United States.

The Central offer is 1 1/2 shares of Central stock and $9 in cash for each share of B&O common. There was no offer for preferred stock. The Central said it would buy up to 1,550,000 shares.

The C&O offer is one share of C&O common for each share of B&O preferred and one share of C&O common for each 1/4 share of B&O common. The C&O's offer expires Sept. 12 and that of the Central on Sept. 22.

There are 599,908 shares of preferred and 2,546,951 shares of B&O common outstanding. The C&O wants its offer accepted by 80 per cent of both classes of stock.

In the developing rail merger picture in the East one big system appears to be evolving around the Pennsylvania Railroad.

While he has not specifically said so, Perlman evidently is fearful of the New York Central might be put at a competitive disadvantage if the C&O and the B&O merge and the Central were left out. The B&O and C&O combine would be a nucleus for a second big system in the East.

In his statement Perlman said, "We are firmly convinced that the tremendous savings and great opportunities for improved service that would be possible through a unification of New York Central and the Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway would bring great benefits to the general public and to the shareholders of each of the three railroads."

Construction Of Homes Up 60 Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—Construction activity sagged a bit in June but private home building bucked the downturn, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday.

The Bureau announced preliminary estimates which showed that construction of all types was running at an annual rate of $33,388,000,000 in June after allowing for seasonal fluctuations. This was about one per cent below the May rate of $33,856,000,000.

Private construction dropped to a rate of $27,968,000,000 from $28,100,000,000. However, private residences were being built at a rate of $21,096,000,000—up 60 million dollars over the May level.

Public building work dropped to a rate of $15,420,000,000 from $15,756,000,000 in May. The decline centered in public spending for nonresidential buildings and for military facilities.

The annual rate of construction work a year ago was $53,760,000,000.

Irregular Market Predicted

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market is likely to perform irregularly in the immediate future, according to some analysts.

This idea seems to have replaced much of the anticipation that the market was poised for a renewed rally that would carry it near the year's highs.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute considers the current reaction from the rapid and extensive advance in May and early June a normal expectation and says more near-term irregularity can be expected.

"Until we see a stronger indication of direction, and until the possibility of a final rally for 1960 is clarified, we continue to sound a cautious note on investments," the institute adds.

Joseph E. Granville of E. F. Hutton & Co. says that with the best consistent strength still lying with the counter-cyclical issues, chances of any further advance at this time have waned.

He says the trend may remain lower for the next few weeks. Bache & Co. believes that the Dow Jones average of industrial stocks has established a clear trading range between 639 and 664.

"It is likely that the industrial index will continue to build a broad sideways pattern within these limits over the near term," the company says. "As has been the case in the recent past, however, individual stocks are likely to move sharply either one way or another as the general list backs and fills."

Still Confident
However, there still is confidence on Wall Street that the market is going to give a good account of itself.

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. terms the market pattern favorable as it continues to move within a 20-point trading range.

This is constructive and indicates the likelihood of an attack against the overhead resistance rather than support levels," he contends.

"Actually, one might view the current stock action in the light of a neutral movement pending the next recovery phase."

A. M. Kidder & Co. commented: "The uncertain outlook for the next few weeks, especially for the steel and motor industries, may make for caution, but we doubt that it will prevent some further gain in the averages."

"When business improves, as we expect it will, the advance in stocks may be expected to broaden out under more representative leadership."

Sees Slowdown

L. O. Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co. sees a slowing in the rate of advance of electronics and science stocks and recommends "some profit taking in them and switching to more conventional equities."

People and Events

Walter L. Jackson, vice president of the Citizens & Southern National Bank, will join the staff of the Georgia National Bank.

Robert W. McKinnon, of Roanoke, Va., will join the staff of the Southeastern Electric Exchange in Atlanta as assistant director.

Miss Carrie A. Vaughn, personnel supervisor for Southern Bell Telephone Co., will retire July 1 after 45 years of service.

Bank of Fulton County directors have declared a five per cent semi-annual dividend, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20.

Colonial Stores, Inc., reported sales of $34,621,601 for the four-week period ended June 18, 1960, compared with $34,507,875 for the corresponding period last year.

Chicago (AP)—Combination of two Midwestern railroads into the third longest in the United States was approved by their stockholders Tuesday.

Chicago & North Western Railway shareholders and those of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway approved at special meetings the North Western's purchase of the M. & St. L. for nearly 21 million dollars.

Addition of the M. & St. L. with 1,508 miles of road operated will increase the North Western system's mileage to 10,798. That will rank it third behind the Santa Fe with 12,970 miles and the Southern Pacific with 12,158, the North Western said.

The transaction involved purchase by the North Western of Minneapolis & St. Louis property, equipment and other assets for $20,929,920. Directors of the two corporations approved the deal in April. The Interstate Commerce Commission also must approve.

Sharp Stock Drop Lasts Second Day

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market stretched a sharp decline into the second straight session as Wall Street remained under the influence of dull business. Trading was fairly active.

The market was no worse than irregularly lower until the final hour when prices slipped to their worst levels.

American Motors was the most active stock, touching a new low for the year add losing 1/2%.

The big news of the day was New York Central's offer to buy Baltimore & Ohio stock on the basis of one share of B&O for 1 1/2 shares of Central plus $9 in cash.

B&O's offer was a profitable deal in the day as this was a profitable closing price. At the close, however, B&O was ahead only 1/2% while Central lost 1/2%.

Chesapeake & Ohio, which is also bidding for B&O, had a net gain of 1/2%.

Discouraged by the sharp drop in the steel industry operating rate and other signs of slack business, steels, motors, oils, aircrafts and drugs declined.

Some electronics and other specially situated issues showed strength in early trading but much of this was dissipated by the close.

An estimated $1,600,000,000 was shown from the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the fall in the AP average.

Some recent big gainers were affected by renewed profit taking. Zenith dropped 3 1/2%, Motorola 3%, Brunswick 2%, Universal Match 2%.

Some chemicals offered resistance. General Tire reported lower earnings and fell 3/4%.

Union Oil of California doubled the dividend and advanced 1 1/2%.

Although Rexall acquired the ethical drug division of Schenley, Rexall fell 1/2%.

American Shipbuilding erased an early spurt of about 3/4% as directors proposed a 5-for-1 stock split. The stock closed with a loss of 1 1/2%.

Beans Slip, Others Hold

CHICAGO (AP)—Old crop soybean futures slumped sharply after three successive broad gains but the grain market otherwise held generally steady.

All wheat, corn and oats deliveries ended the day within one-fourth cent of their previous close while rye was down major fractions on the July and September contracts. Nearly all changes were to the minus side.

Setbacks in soybeans ranged out to well over a cent a bushel. Traders first said the weakness was linked with lower prices for soybean oil and soybean meal but when soybean meal rallied and climbed to the plus side it failed to exert any strength elsewhere. Soybean oil finished weak.
